THE FORCE BILL.

THE REPUBLICAN SENATORS ARE

FOR SOME PLAN FOR ITS PASSAGE.

How Opinion Is Divided Among the Ser ators-The Chickamauga Park-The Work of the Past Session

Washington, October 2.—[Special.]—During the vacation the senate republican leaders will formulate some plan by which the force bill shall be passed next session.

Many of them already have suggestions. All of these will be considered in caucus just after congress meets, and a definite plan will be

The rabid element is determined to pass the bill, while the conservatives are not com mitting themselves either way. If the democrats carry the election this fall, and elect a majority of congressmen, the bill can, perhaps, be killed by stubborn democratic filibustering in both houses. On the other hand, if the republicans carry the house, it is quite certain the force bill will at once be a law.

THE INCREASE OF MACON. The population of the city of Macon was gotten out this morning by the census office. Its per cent of increase is slightly larger than Atlanta, or any other of the large cities in Georgia. It shows up with a population of 22,698, an increase of 9,948 over 1880, when its population was 12,749. The per cent of in-

MP BLAINE WILL COME. Mayor Glenn and John Temple Graves passed through today, returning to Atlanta from New York. Mr. Glenn is quite confident that Mr. Blaine will visit the exposition.

"Tell the people of Atlanta," he said, "for me that Mr. Blaine will be there, and that it will be the biggest day Atlanta has had since Mr. Cleveland visited us four years go. Mr. Blaine seems almost as anxious to visit Atlanta as we are to have him."

MR. GRIMES'S BILLS. Mr. Grimes's bill for the construction of a $100,000 public building at Columbus goes over until next session. The bill has, how-ever, passed both houses of congress, and is now, and has been for a month or more, in conference, on account of some minor amend ment put on by the senate. It would have gone to the president some time ago, but Mr. went to the white house before the passage of his bill providing for a federal court at Columbus. This latter bill has passed the house, and is now before the senate, with good chances of passing among the first things next session. As soon as it passes, Mr. Grimes will have both bills sent to the president at the same time, when Mr. Harrison will be quite certain to sign both. He could not well afford to veto the court bill, and with a court a public building would be necessary. Consequently Columbus is quite certain to get both at the next session.

THE CHICKAMAUGA PARK COMMISSION. The members of the Chickamauga park com mission will meet in Chattanooga on Monday, and go from there to the park to arrange for a survey of the ground, and make other pre nary arrangements to begin work. The landabout 8,000 acres-will be condemned and purchased outright by the government, although the present occupants will be allowed to remain undisturbed. While they will get pay in full for their lands, the government desires that they shall remain just where they are, and continue to plant their lands just as they have always done. Indeed they are decidedly in for they will not only get paid for what they own, but will still practically own it and will further have the best roads that can be built around their farms, and leading to the principal towns in the vicinity. The secretary of war and the general of the army will go down to the park about November 10th. They will spend a day at McPherson barracks, in Atlanta, on their return.

GEORGIA POSTMASTERS. Georgia postmasters appointed today: George Getup, Walker county; William W. Sims, Getup, Walker county; McDonald, Ohoopee, Tattnall county.

BOB KENNEDY RAMPANT. Bob Kennedy has had printed, and is dis tributing in large numbers, his speeches denouncing Quay. He prints together the first speech and the explanation when the house struck it from the record. It is gotten up with lurid headlines. The first caption, in big black letters, is "Expunged." Under this is the line, 'Truth Crushed to Earth will Rise Again.' Kennedy will flood Ohio and the west with these pamphlets, but the republican committee it is needless to say, will not recognize them.

THE CAPITOL DESERTED The capitol was absolutely deserted today. The members and senators have been leavin as fast as the trains could carry them, and hardly a dozen remain tonight. All the Georians, except Senator Colquitt and Messrs Carlton, Grimes, Clements and Candler hav gone home. Senator Colquitt, Mr. Clements and Mr. Candler will leave Sunday or Monday. Mr. Carlton and Mr. Grimes will remain here and in New York a week or two.

The Majority's Views. WASHINGTON, October 2 .- Judge Sawyer, of New York, on behalf of the majority of the mittee that has been investigating the administration of affairs in the pension office said tonight that he was surprised that the minority had given out the report, because it was well understood by the committee that the evidence was not all in and the investigation was not closed. Taking up the allegations in the minority report, one by one, Judge Sawyer said there was not one of the statements that he believed was borne out by the evidence, incomplete as Omissions in the Tariff Bill. Omissions in the Tariff Bill.

Washington, October 2.—It appears that an important omission was made in the tariff bill as enrolled and signed. Section 30 of the internal revenue schedules, which was originally stricken out by the senate, and subsequently restored by the conference, was completely omitted in enrollment. This section provided for an allowance drawback on smoking and manufactured tobacco, and snuff held in unbroken packages in the hands of manufacturers at date when reductions go into effect. As this date is January 1st next, however, there will still be ample opportunity for congress at its next session to correct the error by supplemental legislation.

Congressional Nominations,

Congressional Nominations.

WASHINGTON, October 2.—Congressional nominations were made today as follows: Ex-Congressman Henry Bacon, democrat, fitteenth New York; George W. Ray, republican, twenty-sixth New York; William Mutchler, democrat, (renominated) eighth Pennsylvania; William J. Durham, republican, third Indiana; A. E. Atkinson, republican, (renominated) eighteenth Pennsylvania; Matt D. Logan, democrat, second Louisiana.

A; Party of Young Women on Their | Way to Join the Mormons.

NEW YORK, October 2.—The authorities at the barge office this morning used an immense amount of moral persuasion on thirty-two young Mormons that arrived yesterday on the steamer Wyoming, to induce them to forego their intention of becoming proselytes to the Mormon faith. The girls were separated from the other passengers as they landed and placed in a room by themselves. Three female mis sionaries from the Emigrants Girls' Home sionaries from the Emigrants Girls' Home went among them and tried to convince them of their folly of the course they proposed to follow. It was a very hard undertaking. One of the girls, Karen Sylvesterson by name, who acted as spokeswoman for the party, frankly acknowledged that they were all willing to be one of seven or eight wives, and were fully aware of the principles of Mormomism. The girls are all young, and some of them are remarkably pretty. The attempt of the missionaries to influence them proved an utter failure, and, as all that the barge office authorities can do is to use persuasion, the entire failure, and, as all that the barge office authorties can do is to use persuasion, the entire party will proceed on their journey tomorrow by the Old Dominion line, who Newport News, Va. The party comprises, all told, 202 souls, of whom thirty-two are children. Among the lot is a married English woman, who left her husband in England to take up the Mormon faith. She said she was called and compelled to go. She refused to tell her name.

THE COTTON MOVEMENT. A Comparative Statement of Receipts and

A Comparative Statement of Receipts and Exports.

New Orleans, October 2.—The September crop statement issued today by Secretary Hester, of the New Orleans Cotton Exchange, shows the largest movement in cotton for the first month of the season since the war, if not in the history of the cotton trade. The amount brought into sight for the month was 851,624 bales, against 698,988 bales in September, 1889, and 433,978 bales in September, 1889, and 433,978 bales in September, 1889. The early crop of 1887-88 brought into sight in September thet year 824,000 bales, the nearest to this season's movement on record. The statement shows the receipts at ports for the month 722,779 bales, against 574,1511ast year.

Net shipments by rail overland, 28,906, against 15,553; southern mill takings, exclusive of the amount consumed at ports, 43,504, against 36,223. WASHINGTON, October 2.—The customs administrative act requires that manufacturers consigning goods for sale in the United States shall make a declaration showing the actual cost of production, the cost of materials in detail and every expense making up the invoice price. The London Chamber of Commerce recently represented to the United States consul general at London that this was unfair information to ask, and requested that the following declaration be permanently authorlowing declaration be permanently author-ized: "That for trade reasons we decline to give any consignee the particulars asked for in the declaration form, of manufactured goods, but are willing to give the same to the United States consul general for his personal satisfac-tion." THE DEMAND FOR NEGRO LABOR. Exodus.

RALEIGH, N. C., October 2 .- [Special.] Parties who have just returned from Louisi ana. Alabama, Arkansas and Mississippi learned from cotton planters in these states that the demand for negro laborers from North Carolina will this year be much greater than last. The farmers must have the labor, and that the agents will go after it in November. Last year the agents got to work too late, and the result was that many negroes could not be secured as they had made contracts for the new year. Not only will many labor agents and representatives of railways be at work, but planters will come here them-selves in search of what they want. It is quite often the case that farmers here will permit other farmers to take away the negroes when they would not allow the labor agents

Central, Issues Another Order.

New York, October 2.—Walter Webb, third vice president of the New York Central road, today issued the following circular to the superintendents of the road:
The recent strike and acts of lawlessness committed in connection therewith, the published correspondence between the leaders of the organization that ordered it, and the fact that many men now seeking re-employment state that they quit work from fear of personal violence, and did not dare to resume work for the same reason, compel the management of this company to annot dare to resume work for the same reason, compel the management of this company to announce that it objects to its employes being members of the organization known as "Knights of Labor." The management is satisfied that the membership in this particular organization is inconsistent with faithful and efficient service to the company, and is likely at any time to prevent it from properly discharging its duties to the public. You will at once take such action as will bring this circular to the attention of the employes in your respective departments.

Anniston, Ala., October 2.—[Special.]—
Miss Sallie Poole, a servant girl in the family of Rev. T. R. McCarty, at Piedmont, Ala., a small town twenty-five miles north of this city, has fallen heir to a fortune of $1,000,000, which was left her by a rich uncle who recently died in New York city. Miss Poole was not aware fhat she had any relatives, and this bequest comes in the nature of a great surprise to her. She is a young girl yet in her teens, and has been working in this city several years. She is a bright, intelligent girl, and has always endeared herself to families with whom she worked.

An Increase of Circulation.

An Increase of Circulation An Increase of Circulation.

Washington, October 2.—The statement prepared at the treasury department shows that there was a net increase of $62,009,767 in circulation during the month of September, and a net decrease of $10,863,304 in money and bullion in the treasury. More than half the increase in circulation was in gold certificates.

Washington, October 2.—The president to-day appointed Messrs. Will Cumback, of In-diana, George P. Kinkhead, of Kentucky, and Charles D. Drake, of the District of Columbia, a commission to investigate the Puyollup Indian reservation in the state of Washington.

Baltimore, October 2.—Ex-Governor Philip Francis Thomas, of Maryland, who was secretary of the treasury under President Buchanan, and who has held nearly every office in the gift of the people of Maryland, died tonight, aged eighty years.

PERSUASION PROVED UNAVAILING. | CRISP FOR THE SENATE.

WASHINGTON. IF GORDON SHOULD FAIL TO WIN ROUGHTREATMENT OF A MESSENGER

Why Should Not the Name of Charles T. Crisp Strike a Popular Chord?-Gossip in Washington.

WASHINGTON, October 2 .- [Special.]-A party of gentlemen were discussing the Geor-gia senatorial race in the Metropolitan hotel tonight, when a Georgia congressman spoke up and said:

"I have a suggestion, which I believe will." Thave a suggestion, which I believe was strike a popular chord in Georgia right at this time. Everybody seems dissatisfied with the present condition of affairs in regard to the senatorial race, and I believe if some good strong man, like Hon. Charles F. Crisp, would consent to be a candidate, he could be elected without the slightest trouble. CRISP'S RECORD.

"It seems the alliance is determined the General Gordon shall not be elected, and it is no secret that many of Gordon's old friends, who have stood by him heretofore, are not with him in this race. Crisp is a man that the alliance could without violating a single one of their prin ciples. He is with the farmers, has alway worked, both in and out of congress, for their interests, and is the only Georgia congressman that the alliance did not oppose. Again, Crisp is today the biggest man in Georgia, and a man who has made a reputation in congres second to none. Indeed, he now stands head and shoulders above any democrat in the house, and I think it would be only a fitting recognition of his ability to send him to the

THE ALABAMA ALLIANCEMEN.

They Are Getting Advance Money on Their Cotton.

MONTGOMERY, Ala., October 2.—[Special.]-General Manager Gaither, of the Alliance Exchange, in this city, is proceeding in a painstaking and methodical way to advance the farmers money on their cotton in Alabama What success he will meet with remains to be seen. One thing is certain, he is in dead earnest about this matter, and is displaying extra ordinary energy, shrewdness and sagacity in an undertaking of such gigantic proportion an uncertaking of such gigantic proportions. He has the money—no matter where he got it—to, advance to the farmers $35 per bale on 500,000 bales, and all he saks is that the farmers hold their cotton for his agent. In this week's issue of The Alliance Herald, which appeared on the streets today, is published an important notice addressed to the "alliance ware-housepen," to each and exerce country alliance. semen." to each and every county alliance to each and ever suballiance, and to each an to each and ever subalisance, and to each and every individual allianceman throughout the length and breadth of Alabama, signed by John B. Harris who has recently been made manager of the cotton department of the ex-change. Mr. Harris states that he is daily receiving more letters than he can answer from farmers desiring advances on cotton, and "I wish to say to all at the same time that when you have cotton to sell, get it in lots of 100 to 1.000 bales, and while you are bulking it, place it where are bulking it, place it where there is a railroad station agent, and tell this station agent to write to his general freight agent and give you the through freight rate on the cotton from that particular station to Liverpool, and when you have this rate, then I can tell you how much I can pay you on middling basis. I will pay for cotton through the nearest bank."

Everybody here, outside of the alliance, is wondering where the money comes from. THE NORTH CAROLINA DEMOCRATS

The Republicans Carry the State by an In-Bois City, October 2.—The estimate

the vote of Bois City, Idaho county, is republican majority of 175 on the entire state ticket. Bingham's returns give the republican ticket a majority of 300. In Bois county re-ticket a majority of 300. In Bois county returns from four precincts give Wilson, democrat, for congress, twelve majority. The same precincts gave Hawley, democrat delegate, in the vote of 1888, twenty majority.

Later—Incomplete returns from five counties give Sweet, republican, for congress, 950 majority. Meagre returns indicate that the legislature will stand thirty republicans and twenty-two democrats. The republicans claim the state by 2,500 majority. The democrats concede the state to the republicans by 800 majority. Returns received show large gains for the republicans over the vote of 1883.

Incomplete returns from seven counties out

Incomplete returns from seven counties out of eighteen in the state, give Sweet, republican, for congress, 1,500 majority. The same counties in 1888 gave Dubois, republican, delegate, 980 majority. The entire state is republican by 1,500 to 2,000 majority. Late returns show that the legislature will probably stand thirty-three republicans to nineteen democrats.

A Decrease in Crime.

Galveston, Tex., October 2.—[Special.]—In answer to inquiries sent out by Governor Ross to the county judges, inquiring as to whether, during the past four years, there had been an increase or decrease of crime in their districts, reports received from 113 of these judges show a general average of 40 per cent decrease, and no real or apparent difference in the operations of the laws on account of politics or race considerations.

TIED TO HIS CHAIR

AN IMPORTANT SUGGESTION FROM WHILE THE ROBBERS STOLE THE EXPRESS PACKAGES.

A Train Robbery on an Obio Railroad—Two Masked Men Have Things Their Own Way—Other Criminal News.

Tolepo, O., October 2.- A Blade special from Carey, O., gives an account of a bold train robbery this morning on the Cincinnati, Sandusky and Cleveland railroad between that place and Urbana. Immediately after the train left Urbana two masked men, with cocked revolvers, entered the express car and compelled the Adams express messenger, A. L. Seudder, to throw up his hands. They then tied him securely and robbed the safe of packages containing several thousand dollars and other valuables. While they were at work a brakeman attempted to enter the car, gave an alarm, and the train was slowed up to give an opportunity to capture the robbers, but they jumped from the train just as it was entering West Liberty and disappeared in the darkness, it then being just about 5 o'clock.

TIED TO HIS CHAIR. Messenger Scudder was bound in his chair with a wash line that the robbers brought with them. One of them, whom the other called "Jack," tried to kill Scudder before leaving the car. Placing his revolver at his head he pulled the trigger, but the cartridge failed to explode. The other robber then prevented explode. The other robber then prevented him from trying again. When the train pulled out of West Liberty the two soundrels again got aboard, holding the entire crew at bay. Scudder, who had been relased, opened fire on them with a pistol from his car door, but was compelled to retreat. The robbers kept on board until Bellefontaine was reached, when they again jumped off and disappeared.

PURSUING THE ROBBEAS.
Officers at Bellefontaine are searching fo them. Scudder is about fifty years old, lives in Cincinnati, and has been on this run since the Adams company took charge of the ex-press business on it, about three years ago. He was previously in the same company's employ on Ohio river lines. He had just received his month's salary, and that was among the booty.

GAMBLERS WHITE-CAPPED.

Texan Farmers Take Summary Measures with Three Young Men. Columbus, Tex., October 2.—[Special.]-News was received here yesterday evening of high-handed and diabolical killing at Eagle Lake bottom, on the Vineyard place, nine miles below the town of Eagle Lake. C. E. Armstrong, R. E. Mills and Bob Wyatt, all of Kyle, Tex., came to Eagle Lake for the purpose of picking cotton. They began work for Frazer Brothers. After working for them a while, they began gambling with the negroes on the place, and after being requested by Frazer Brothers to quit gambling with their hands, left them in their debt, and engaged to work for another man, where they still carried work for another man, where they still carried on their gambling.

On Monday night ten masked men went to the house where, the young men were stopping, and called them up, made them light a lamp, talked about five minutes, and marched the three young men out in front of them, whereupon Bob Wyatt attempted to run, when the crowd fired upon him viddling him with bullets and them. attempted to run, when the crowd fired upon him, riddling him with bullets and then nurder was rampant and dead men tell no tales. R. E. Mills was shot through the body, but escaped by running through the woods down the bank of the river, and was found down the bank of the river, and was found next morning about four miles from the place of the homicide. C. E. Armstrong was shot twice, once through the arm and in the neck. The parties left, him for dead, but before doing so they caught him by the leg and arm to make certain, but he played 'possum on them, thereby saving his life. Both Armstrong and Mills claim to have recognized the parties or party who did the shooting, and they preferred charges against Underwood Frazer, Foard Frazer, H. H. Moore and Vineyard. The two Frazers and Vineyard waived an examination, and were released on a $2,000 bond. H. H. Moore is in jail, charged with murder. The district the grand jury for the purpose of looking into this matter. The persons charged with com-mitting these deeds are the best citizens of this county. They are the representative men of that community.

THE PICKPOCKETS' SCHEME. A Lumber Dealer Returning from a Fair

Robbed of $10,600. PITTSBURG, Pa., October 2.-Today while J PITTSBURG, Pa., October 2.—Today while J. K. Gardner, an 'extensive lumber dealer of Ridgeway, Pa., was returning from the East Liverpoet, O., fair, he was relieved of $10,000 on the train. He had been talking somewhat loudly at the Ohio races and was no doubt followed to the train by a gang. His destination was Allegheny City, and when Washington street was reached, some smoothly-dressed brakeman called out "Allegheny." Gardner jumped to his feet, and started for the door, but was immediately jammed into a corner by several men, who also wanted to get off at Allegheny City. He apologized to one of them, after a quarrel, during which Gardner said the other fellow's hands were in his pocket. After the city proper was reached, his pocket. After the city proper was reached, Gardner found he had apologized too soon. His pocketbook, containing $10,000, the proceeds of a recent lumber sale, was gone. This is the fourth affair of the kind that has occurred her recently.

THUGS AND CUTTHROATS.

The Little Town of Oakesdale Infested with

SPOKANE FALLS, Wash., October 2.—The town of Oakesdale, forty miles from here, has of late been infested with thugs and cutthroats, whom the authorities were totally unable to hold in check. Many burglaries have been committed. The thugs have threatened to burn the town and the good citizens have been organizing for its defense.

Yesterday an old-time vigilance committee was organized, and three men were ordered to leave town in fifteen minutes. The men left. There is great excitement and the town is well guarded to prevent any acts of revenge.

Determined to Die.

Determined to Die.

CHICAGO, October 2.—Last night Theodore Ferstenberg jumped from the Indiana street bridge into the river. Bridge Tender McGraw jumped in after him and a fierce struggle ensued, McGraw trying to rescue the would-be suicide and the latter fighting against rescue, while a crowd gathered on the bridge and looked on at the tragedy. Finally Ferstenberg swam away and sank to rise no more alive. His body was recovered about an hour later. Ferstenberg belonged to a prominent family in Germany, and five years ago was a colonel in the German army. He came to this country, but met with financial reverses at every turn.

LOUISVILLE, October 2.—At Princeton, Ky., yesterday, Ernest Humphreys shot and killed Dicy Motler, both colored. Humphreys was placed in jail and last night a mob of negroes took him out and hung him. Humphreys had killed a man previously.

THE IRON AND STEEL MEN. The Second Day's Convention of the Metal People.

New York, October 2.—The second day's convention of the Iron and Steel institute opened in Chickering hall this morning with a somewhat larger attendance of members, but with fewer ladies than yesterday.

The delegates had been invited to visit the Consolidated Gas Company's works, but the morning was threatening, and, as the Englishmen feared bad results "from the eccentric American climate," only a score or so left the hotel.

American climate," only a score or so left the hotel.

Sir James Kitson again presided, although Sir Frederick Abel was elected president of the institute at yesterday's meeting. He said that the paper of James Gayley, of Bessemer, Pa., on "The Development of the American Blast Furnace," read at yesterday's meeting, created a great deal of interest, and a further opportunity would be afforded for discussion. William Whiteley, of Stockton, England, said the English visitors would inspect the principal blast furnaces in America with much interest. Speaking of the English furnaces, he said if they were kept more open, in order to free them of a great quantity of their sulphur, they would get more limestone out of them. The silicia in English ore, he said, was from 62 to 7 per cent, and this he thought very good.

William Kemp, of Pittsburg, said Lake Su-being ore represented one-half of the total ore product in this country, but was by no means the controlling factor.

J. B. Weeks, of Pittsburg, Pa., said that the Ivanhoe furnaces, which are comparatively small, yielded about as good results as those described in Cavariance at those the rose.

smail, yielded about as good results as those described in Gayley's paper, although the percentage of motallic ore was very small.

Edward Martin, manager of the Dowes furnaces in Wales, said the coke used there was not bright or lustrous, but nevertheless it was as hard as any other coke he ever saw burnt. He did not think the best coke always looked brightest. Gayley received the thanks of the brightest. Gayley received the thanks of the meeting.

Sir James Nutson then made the presentation of a Bessemer gold medal to ex-Mayor Abram F. Hewitt, who was too ill to receive it yesterday.

Sir James said Hewitt's fame as a metallurgist and advector of scientific education had and advocator of scientific education had long been known in England, and it was only a debt of gratitude with the Iron and Steel in-Hewitt with the medal. Hewitt was the first man to build an open hearth furnace in the United States; in fact, his record was a record of "firsts" throughout.

Mr. Hewitt, who looked unwell, asked leave to read what he had been as the first was the first was the first was a record of "firsts" throughout.

Mr. Hewitt, who looked unwell, asked leave to read what he had to say. He was sensible of the great honor conferred upon him, he said, but was not able to accept the distinction without feelings of compunction, because his own connection with the business had been rather in the direction of administration and the study of economic conditions, than with the technical details. He could make no pretension to scientific or practical knowledge of tension to scientific or practical knowledge of the business which had heretofore been the case with men decorated with the medal. Nevertheless, he was somewhat reconciled to the decision of the institute by the informa-tion that this particular medal is conferred out of the ordinary course and has been recorded. of the ordinary course, and has been provided by Sir Henry Bessemer, in view of your visit to this country, in order to enable you to make recognition of the wonderful development of the steel industry, which has taken place dur-ing the last decade in the United States.

Professor H. M. Howe, of Boston, read a paper on the manufacture of Bessemer steel in the United States.

The afternoon session was devoted to unveiling the statue to Lyman Holly, erected by the American Institute of Mining Engineers. It is surmounted by a colossal bronze bust, by Ward. James Dredge, editor of the London Engineering, delivered the addressin Chickering hall. He said Holly was considered the one representative in America of Bessemer steel. The gates of every steel work in Europe were open to him, and no manufacturer held a secret from him, The members of three societies, the British Iron and Steel Institute, the American Institute of Electric Engineers and the Verein tute of Electric Engineers and the Versin Deutscher Eisenhuettenleute, headed by a band, marched to Washington square, where Alexander Holly Olmstead, the twelve-year-old grandchild of the inventor, pulled the cord and the statue was unveiled: The inscription registes:

recites:
"In honor of Alexander Lyman Holly. "In honor of Alexander Lyman Hony. Foremost among those whose genius and energy established in America, and improved throughout the world, the manufacture of bessemer steel. This memorial is erected by the engineers of two hemispheres."

AN UNFORTUNATE PLACE. Colon, Aspinwall, Visited by Another Terrible Conflagration. Panama, September 25.—This isthmus has been visited by another destructive fire. This time Colon, Aspinwall, has suffered even more heavily than before, and the loss is calculated to exceed $1,000,000. Numerous rumors are affoat as to the origin of the fire, but official report asserts that it originated from a kerosene lamp which exploded or was overturned in a small house on Boliver street, near the Electric Light Company's works; then it spread sout ward along the peninsula on which Colon is situated, and defied all efforts until about 7 o'clock a. m., when the flames reached the market, and then died out

The section consumed embraced the whole of the city front, and everything was destroyed save a few stonewalls, where stood business house buildings in which for years a large general business had been done. The railroad company is a heavy loser in cars, while shippers and consignees of through cargoes report a loss of at least ninety car loads of freight.

The Pacific mail dock suffered no damage, but several of others were slightly damaged All the principal business houses were destroyed. Among this number were those occupied by Messrs. Ehrmen, Maduro & Cuyos, Pisa Lindo & Co., Isaacs & Arch and A. James & Co., as well as all the hotels, the Panama Railroad Company's office, English Royal Mail Company's office, Panama railroad freight house and other equally important buildings were among those which fell.

Every exertion was made in Colon to control the fiames, and a number of citizens from here went to aid the stricken city, but without avail. THE WOMAN HAD HIS SECRET. He died at the home of Mrs. Pannell, an old lady who was his only friend. She had known him many years, and says he often told her he was a fugitive from justice, with a price on his head, but she kept his secret, and when he was told he was dying, he asked to be left alone with his only friend. Then he told her he was none other than Quantrell, and she says he gave her instructions how to establish his identity beyond doubt.

HOW LONG SHE HAS KNOWN HIM. What these instructions are she refuses to say, but declares that she is going to look into the matter herself and see if the story is true.

Mrs. Pannell says she has known the dead man since the war, and all the time he was in constant dread of his identity being discovered. The circumstances tending to corroborate the man's dying confession are too long to be given in detail, but they are strong enough to con-vince almost any one that if the man was not Quantrell himself, he was at least a member

He says the story that Quantrell was mortally wound in a fight with federal soldiers in Kentucky is not true; that he was alive long after the war. Dr. W. C. McCoy, a Methodist minister in this city, is said to have known Quantrell when a boy, and it is well known that the man Henderson, on several occasions, avoided man Henderson, on several occasions, avoided meeting McCoy face to face.

While Henderson drank a great deal and did no work, he always had plency of money, and owned a fine horse. He killed a man in this state once, was convicted of manslaughter and sent to prison, but was soon pardoned.

THE MASSACRE AT VITUA.

Further Particulars of the Killing of the Cermans.

ZANZIBAR, October 2.—Particulars of the recent massacre of Germans by the natives of Vitua have been received. Four men were killed outside of the gate of Vitua, and three others after a pursuit of several miles. Kuntzel was the last to be killed. Menschel was wounded, but escaped owing to the concealment afforded by some long grass. The murderers then proceeded to Kuntzel's camp and killed Horn, who had been in charge, destroyed all the German plantations and murdered a planter named Dehnke.

The bodies of all the murdered persons lie where they fell, permission for the burial of the remains being refused. It is stated that those who lost their lives were all inoffensive, industrious persons, with the exception of Kuntzel. The Sultan had summoned them to his presence and disarmed them on September lith, a day previous to the massacre, when Kuntzel violently abused the sultan, thus determining the fate of the party.

The Gazette asks: "Does Jackson's airy scamper, Balfour's placid absence from Ireland, or eager scepticism of The Times, prove that there is no famine in Ireland?" The Star says: "America shames us. The establishment of a British fund to relieve the distress in Ireland is imperative."

The remarkably full returns given of Wednesday's election in yesterday's Consti-TUTION were the subject of much favorable

Four years ago, when General Gordon made his first race for governor, Screven county was conceded against him. The Local Railroad Is Taking Good Care of Its Patrons. LUMPKIN, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]— Lumpkin now enjoys the profits arising from a irst-class cotton market. She is now paying as much for cotton as any town in this section as much for cotton as any town in this section of country, and it is due to the evident desire of the Savannah, Americus and Montgomery railroad to foster and encourage all the towns along its line. While we have no competing railway, yet we have the same rate to Savannah as other towns who have a competing line. The result is real estate is advancing, the farmers are jubilant over being able to market their cetten at home the merchants are hanny farmers are jubilant over being able to market their cotton at home, the merchants are happy over good collections and increased sales, and the certainty of soon having a block of brick stores and a fine hotel. Every storehouse is occupied, making about thirty firms doing business here, and all are prospering. We are receiving about 100 bales of cotton a day, and the only drawback is the absence of money facilities. We need a bank, and need it now. We have a charter for one, and I am glad to say there is a movement on foot to establish one at once.

Dr. Felton.

The interview with Dr. Felton, in July, shows that he had strong faith in the democracy of the alliance, and had no word of censure for the two opposing congressional candidates, and therefore, could not make himself an element of democratic obstruction and disorganization at a time when party fealty and unity were so essential.

Just about this same time, when the doctor was boistering and propping his democracy and his party fealty, by assuming a virtuous role to the public through the newspapers, it has leaked out that he was writing letters over the district seeking encouragement to appear before the people as a candidate against Clements at the Calboan convention, on the ground of a ten years' worthless service to the public, in which he had never secured legislation worth a fig to the people, or had even been responsible for that which he claimed. In other words, to draw from the doctor's estimable opinion of Mr. Clements, he had been a veritable opinion of Mr. Clements, he had been a veritable political deadbeat—a man whom he could not vote for. And, also, against Everett because he, Everett, had stated in a speech at Calhoun that he had voted for Clements against Felton, thus removing his good opinion of Everett.

This would appear that Dr. Felton was a secret and clandestine candidate for congress before the Calhoun convention, and that his public ntterances were merely to substantiate himself in the minds of the people as a street organized democrat, with a view to eliciting flattery to use on the stump as an independent candidate.

To say it has been red hot is to put it mildly. The purely local issues have been submerged by the issue on the sale of the Okefenokee swamp, under the bill passed by the last legislature. Captain Hall was strongly in favor of the bill, and his enemies in the county have been assaulting him furiously on the subject. His friends think that an unfair fight has been made upon Captain Hall.

It seems from their letters that Captain Hall's interest is covered under Phillips's name. Phillips brought Linderman here to gobble up the swamp and he used Hall necessary in the securing the passage of the bill, but Jackson and Young came into the matter at a later stage and don't give much information about Hall's conduct as a representative. AN ATTEMPT TO SUBSIDIZE THE PRESS.
DAHLONEGA, Ga., September 20.—As it was known, having been published in The Signal, that Mr. A. B. Linderman's letter would appear in our next, which was said to expose Mr. Hall in his acts during the legislature, some unmitigated soundrel entered the office and pied the galley of type and destroyed the manuscript. This act was done at the dead hours of night, the time that thieves, house burners and murderers put in their work against the innocent. This act upon the part of villainous greed, is beyond precedent in Dahlonega, and the perpetrator is only awaiting his turn to join the felons in the chaingang to do the state's public service. The letter will be published now, if Mr. Linderman is in the United States. Respectfully, Editor Signal: The circular as issued contains exactly our sentiments in every particular, for the crime was committed and the circular published to inform the people what was going on, which we believed at the time was done to prevent the publication of a letter, which, in our opinion, was thought damaging to Captain Hall in his candidacy for tab legislature, while, on the other hand, it is said, by someof Mr. Hall's friends, to have been done by the opposition, or Mr. Davis's friends, for capital to be used in favor of Mr. Davis. However, let this be as it may, for the people to judge for themselves, of an offense which is beyond all conception of meanness.

The Signal has endeavored to give both sides a fair and impartial hearing. We have made no preferences toward either of the candidates, and our acts, so far in the premises, and our course now, its to vindicate our neutrality in the surrounding circumstances against any accusation in complicity in the act of preventing its publication, in protection of a basiness obligation and the very thing which we predicted in our mind, has occurred, hence, making it absolutely necessar under any and all circumstances. We regard the matter as an unfortunate thing for all concerned, and one which no one regrets more than we, but let the article be published and let the people judge of all the matters at interest.

Mr. Linderman received our dispatch in due season. He at once reproduced the manuscript, and on Tuesday evening last we received it by the hands of Postmaster Ingersoil, as he was the special messenger, and it will be found in these columns today.

In my letter I said Hall had forgotten to state the whole Okefenokee business. To show your people that Hall had a large interest in the stock of the Okefenokee Company, I below give you copy of an agreement which speaks for itself.

of the Okefenokee Company, I below give you a copy of an agreement which speaks for itself.

"ATLANTA, Ga., July 24, 1889.—Referring to a certain agreement signed this day in duplicate by Marshall A. Phillips, by his attorney in fact, A. B. Linderman, Frank W. Hall, Hugh H. Gordon and Joel A. Sweat, one copy of agreement given to A. B. Linderman, attorney in fact for Marshall A. Phillips, and the other copy, with a certain letter of instruction from Marshall A. Phillips to his attorney in fact, A. B. Linderman, deposited with R. U. Hardeman, for the other parties in interest."

In this agreement mentioned above it recites that Frank W. Hall shall have $150,001 of the stock of the Okefenokee Land and Drainage Company, fully paid and forever non-assessable. It also recites that Marshall A. Phillips is to furnish a sum of money sufficient to purchase the swamp and, as needed for the work, a further sum of $150,000 to make surveys and commence the work of drainage and reclamation, for which sum or sums of money the Okefenokee Land and Drainage Company is to execute a mortgage or other form of security to Marshall A. Phillips in secure him against loss, in addition to all the above recited facts it is further agreed between Marshall A. Phillips and Frank W. Hall that $100,000 of this stock, which represents one-tenth of the whole stock, and a corresponding interest in the property of the Okefenokee Land and Drainage Company, shall be absolutely relieved from the mortgage or other form of security given to Marshall A. the property bought in by him, undivided, shall belong to the said Frank W. Hall, or in case the property is bought by other parties a claim against the said Phillips is good for one-tenth the entire value of the stock. Should the stock be increased from time to time to the $5.000,000 allowed in the charter, the said Hall is still to have his pro rata share of the new issue, namely, one-tenth, and the same shall be subject to all the protection mentioned for the first $100,000.

The original of the above is now in the safe of Colonel Hardeman and as far as I am concerned, it may be shown. It is fair to say that Mr. Gordon withdrew from our syndicate and I was informed connected himself with another. It is true the title was changed to the Suwannee Canal Company, but Hall retained his interest to the last. When Mr. Phillips was in Dahlonega in February last, and the guest of Hall, he gave to Hall a letter which recired that Hall and his associates were to receive three-eights of any profits that Phillips might realize by selling the swamp in London. The swamp has been sold at a price that will improve both the health and bank account of Hall.

Mr. Linderman then goes on, to refer to gold mine transactions which are not of special mine transactions which are not of special state interest. He concludes with a severe attack on Mr. Hall, and signs his name to it all. A MODERN JESSE JAMES,

ENDORSES NORTHEN'S PLAN. A Letter on a Public Matter of Consider

MACON, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The following letter explains itself:

ZEBULON, Ga., October 1.—Hon. W. J. Northen, Fresident Georgia State Agricultural Society, Sparta, Ga. Dear Sir: We heartly endorse your invitation to the members elect of the next general assembly, to meet you and each other in Macon on the 22d of October, for the purpose of witnessing the progress and prosperity of the agricultural and industrial interests of the state as evidenced by the displays at the state fair. We think this a thing eminently proper to be done, and shall with pleasure embrace this opportunity to meet the farmers of the state and all our present and prospective officials. Very respectfully,

J. H. MITCHELL.

Macon Construction Stock Still Selling at High Figures.

Macon, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—President W. B. Sparks, of the Macon Construction Company, who has been in New York several months arranging money matters in regard to the building of his railroads, the Macon and Atlantic, and Macon and Birmingham, left Atlantic, and Macon and Birmingham, left New York last night for Macon. His construc-tion company's stock still keeps high up in the figures. The par value of Macon Construction stock'is $10,000 per share. Yesterday a party living outside of Macon sold some of the stock to Macon parties at $30,500 per share, and re-invested the money in Macon and Atlantic stock at one-fourth premium, the par value being $10,000 per share.

MACON MERCHANTS Caught in a Failure, but Their Mortgages Protect Them.

Macon, Ga., October 2.—[Spēcial.]—News has been received in Macon of the failure of Lippman & Barnett, of Montezuma. They did a large general merchandise business. It is said the cause of the failure was due to bad whether the property and the cause of the failure was due to bad collections for goods sold on credit.

The assets are estimated at $26,000 and the liabilities at $33,000. Most of the indebtedness is due to Macon merchants, but they are said to be amply protected by mortgages.

THE TRAINS COLLIDE

But Strange to Say No One Was Hurt-The Damaged Engines.

Macon, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—What came near being a very disastrous accident occured this morning at 6:10 o'clock on the Central railroad, near Massey's Mills, where the Central and Georgia roads cross.

The second section of a freight train collided with the incoming Georgia passenger train. Both engines and several cars were badly damaged. No one was hurt, though passengers got a severe joiling. The track was blocked for some time by the wreck and all trains were delayed several hours. A Recruiting Officer

Macon, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—Captain Frank G. Smith, of the Fourth United States Artillery, of Atlanta, is insisted eity to open a recruiting office. He will probably remain here three or four months. He is a most affable gentleman and a splendid officer. Funeral Services

Macon, Ga., October 2.—[Special.]—The funeral services of Officer Henry Winters were held this morning, and were largely attended. Rev. Mr. Hodge officiated. The following members of the police force acted as pall-bearers: Lieutenant C. M. Wood, and Officers Holmes, Andrews, Grace, Long and Brown. The death of Officer Winters is much lamented.

THE RAIN HURTS.

COTTON, CORN AND PEAS HAVE BEE DAMAGED MATERIALLY.

the Reports Show, Coming from Parts of the State-The Weather Man's Figures.

"The cotton in this section has been damaged

10 per cent in the last ten days." That is the tenor of the reports pouring into the office of the commissioner of agriculture The message quoted comes from a Middle Georgia county, but the complaint is common to every section of the state. It is notable, too, that the cotton has suffered nost in that section, southwest Georgia, where most cotton is grown. "I never saw so much cotton open fields on the 1st of October," is a report from that section, "and I never saw it before in such had condition "Sprouting upon the stalk," "rotting in the "covering the ground."

These are expressions met with time and again in these letters. "Impossible to get enough labor," is another cry.

Already, even before the recent heavy rains the cotton had been considerably damaged by rust. With the rain came northeast ceating the cotton out. THE AVERAGES. In middle Georgia the average of the cotto crop is 80, in north Georgia 82, in southwest Georgia 74, in east Georgia 81, and in southeast Georgia 80. The average, therefore, is considerably below 80.

CORN AND PEAS. The cotton crop is not the only one materially damaged within the past twenty days.

The residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Faber, on Whitehall street, was the scene of a most delightful reception last evening.

It was a wedding reception given to Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Durant, whose romantic marriage last week has been mentioned. Mrs. Durant, the bride, nee Miss Lillie Burton, of Norfolk, Va., is a sister of Mrs. Faber, whose lovely home was thrown open last evening to the friends of the happy young couple.

The residence was beautifully decorated with fragrant plants and flowers, and the presence of a fine string band added much to the enjoyment of the occasion.

The evening's programme consisted of im-promptu literary exercises, with delightful re-freshments as an after part.

The rooms of the post were crowded with mem-bers and their friends, and an exceedingly pleas-ant evening was passed by all. Everything was delightfully informal, which always makes the campfires of the post especialty enjoyable.

MILLEDGEVILLE, Ga., September 29.—[Special.]
One of the most brilliant social events that Milledgeville has had, was the reception given the delegates to the district missionary convention, at the elegant home of Captain and Mrs. C. P. Crawford, last Saturday night. There were about fifty-five delegates from the different towns of the district, embracing young and middle-aged ladies, and these were supplemented by young ladies and gentlemen of this city. The beautiful home was brilliantly illuminated, its large folding doors thrown open and the decorations, tasty and unique, added to the pretty mottoes that graced the walls, altogether made up a lovely scene. The dining room was exquisitely arranged with its tables copiously laden with refreshments and delicacies, while in the center of the room was a huge pyramid of ferns and flowers. Some of the leading musical talent of the city furnished music for the feast, and the evening, in every particular, was a decided success. ford, last Saturday night. THE CIVIL SERVICE LEAGUE. A Meeting of Men Who Are Afflicted with an Idea.

A Meeting of Men Who Are Afflicted with an Idea.

Boston, Mass., October 2.—At a meeting of the National Civil Service Reform League today George William Curtis was elected president for the ensuing year.

The treasurer's report showed a balance of $2,000 in the treasury. A paper, by E. M. Shepard, of Brooklyn, on the examination in the character essential to complete competition, was read. Charles J. Bonaparte, of Baltimore, president of the Maryland League, read a paper on the "Relation of Civil Service Reform and Other Reforms." He declared the civil service reform to be necessary before the other reforms could begin. He said to expect to get a solution of the tariff, currency and pension problems from such men as make up the bulk of either house or congress, or to deal wisely with the labor and liquor questions, through such men as make up our legislatures and city councils, is as irrational as to expect a fig from thistles. A veritable Serbonian bog of intrigue and bribery will be created, if those who grapple with these questions have any but the highest standard of honor.

The standard of those politicians has been defined by one of their own number. A senator has declared a purification of politics anirdescent dream and that the golden rule has no place in a political campaign. The same doctrine is echeed by every unfaithful trustee, dishonest trader, habitual swindler and thief. The profession like that of a gambler or confidence man. The politician may as well, so far as his self-respect or public utility are affected, be owned by a rich man, rich ecorporation, Farmers' Alliance, Knights of Labor or Grand Army Republic. He is a bale of the same goods, whatever be his trademark.

To rid our country of these dangerous and noxious counterfeits of statesmen and make bale of the same goods, whatever be his trade-mark.

To rid our country of these dangerous and noxious counterfeits of statesmen and make room fer a genuine article which we produced in good measure 100 years ago, we have only to do away with the incidents of public life which have arisen and made it no fit career for honorable men. When we have practically applied principles of civil service reform through our federal, state and municipal gov-ernments we may hope for other reforms so much desired.

GALVESTON'S YOUNG MEN.

They Conclude to Take a Hand in Politics.

GALVESTON, Tex., October 1.—[Special.]—Galveston is the possessor of a Young Men's Democratic Association. The club is composed principally of young men who have heretofore refrained from active participation in politics. The thought, however, a few weeks ago, entered the heads of a few that the city was going to the demnition bow-wows and while it was a great sacrifice for them to enter the political arena, yet as true citizens and loving patriots they thought the time had at last come when they must do something to save their beloved city and county from disgrace. So they threw aside their clean clothes, put on their rusty garments and organized themselves. The officers selected are gentlemen of high social standing, but they know nothing about politics or political methods. The first thing they thought that devolved upon them to do was to put out a county ticket. They selected gentlemen who have heretofore been silent in campaigns, and who could not be termed politicians or office seekers. They met in secret session a few nights ago, and the next morning the news was given out that they had endorsed certain gentlemen for certain offices. Now there were other candidates in the field on the democratic ticket for these same places. They are those who have for years past helped to bear the brunt of the party's battles, and they say they'll be durned if they will give way to any trundlebed crowd who wouldn't know how to conduct an office if they had one. Thus it is the democrates are divided. The republicans, who have great strength in the county, seeing this dissension, have concluded to put out a ticket, and unless the two democratic factions come together, there is danger from the camps of the enemy.

An English Syndicate Supposed to Have Its Eye on the Phosphate Territory.

CHARLESTON, S. C., October 2.—[Special.]— Quite a flutter was caused in the phosphate market here today by the mysterious visit of a party of foreign capitalists. The party consisted of C. Hoyer Miller and E. Packard, of London; K. Weingard, of Hamburg; W. S.
Cooper, of London; James Gurdyrn, of Aberdeen, with O. Meyer, of Nova Scotia, and E.
A. Cordary, of Florida. They got here early in the morning, went up to the Charleston Mining Company's works in the suburbs, took a run over the phosphate fields, and left for Beaufort at 3 o'clock p. m., leaving instructions for their mail to be forwarded to Tampa, Fla. Miller and Cooper are members of the well-known Canadian phosphate firm of Cooper, Miller & Co., of London and Montreal.
The general impression here is that the rumors that have been circulated for several weeks of the intention of the English syndicate to buy up all the phosphate territory and mills in this all the phosphate territory and mills in this state and Florida, are true, and that the pres-ent party are prospectors. Phosphate men here are reticent on the subject, and say they don't know anything about it.

THE ARCHITECTS AND CONTRACTORS
ALL BUSY.

Work Begun on the Big Dry Goods House of J. M. High—Other Business Buildings and Residences Going Up.

Atlanta is building up more rapidly now than at any other period in her previous his-

The contractors and architects have more than they can do, and in fact hands cannot be had to do near all the work of house building that is ready planned and let out to the con-

This statement is verified by the architects and the builders all over the city.

Scores of new residences are being planned for commencement next spring, and almost every day sees the completion of some handsome and costly edifice.

Besides their home work, the Atlanta designers and contractors are being sought in other cities, such is the reputation as a center of elegant homes Atlanta has abroad. One Atlanta architect has in hand work that will foot up nearly a half million dollarspublic buildings and residences.

In Atlanta, the number of business houses being put up is no less wonderful than the numerous residences, from mansion to cottage, being rapidly pushed to completion in all parts of the city.

Here are some few—only a few—of the many buildings nearing completion and in process of

One of the most important buildings to be erected at once is the High building, at the corner of Whitehall and Hunter streets.

The actual work of tearing away the old

The actual work of tearing away the old buildings has been in operation for several days past, and will be pushed forward from now on. The plans and specifications of the building are being drawn up by Messrs. Bruce & Morgan, the architects.

It is calculated that the building, which is to be one of the handsomest and most spacious in the city, will be ready for occupancy by this time next year. Considerable time will be required to remodel and tear away the present structure, so that the new one can be worked upon to advantage.

The J. M. High building will front fifty-five feet on the corner of Hunter and Whitehall, feet on the corner of Hunter and Whitehall, and will extend clear through the square to Broad street. It will be five stories, with a basement.

J. M. High & Co. will occupy the entire building with a mammoth dry goods establishment. It will be planned especially for such use, and, of course, will be a marvel of taste and convenience.

Seventy-five thousand dollars or more will be expended on the new building.

Mr. J. H. Matthews, contractor of the Kiser law building, corner of Pryor and Hunter streets, is pushing the work there with all speed. Already the building is taking shape, which shows that it will be one of the hand-somest in the south.

Still another business block.

Mr. James L. Dickey, of the Western and Atlantic read, will build it.

Mr. W. W. Goodrich is the architect, and the building, which is to cost $15,000, will be commenced in a short time.

The building will be on South Broad street, on Mr. Dickey's lot. It will be four stories high, with a front of Georgia marble—the only marble front in the city. Columns of pink creole marble will be used to support the front entrance. Altogether, the Dickey building will be a yery beautiful one.

Mr. George Muse has remodeled the front of his store on Whitehall street. It has now one of the most commodious entrances on the

Messrs. Bruce & Morgan, as architects, have on hand a large number of buildings, among them the following: Hon. Frank P. Rice's elegant residence on from Hon. John T. Glenn. Mr. Bates is a Griffin gentleman—a banker.

Mon. Frank F. Rice's elegant residence on West Peachtree street, opposite Dr. Thurmond's place, is well under way. It is to be of fine style, costing $15,000.

Judge John L. Hopkins' and his son, Mr. Charles Hopkins, are erecting elegant homes, side by side, on the Boulevard, at the corner of Angier avenue. The two residences cover a front of 150 feet.

Mr. H. T. Phillips, of the firm of Phillips & Crew, is also building a home on the Boulevard near Cain street, opposite Captain John C. Hendrick's lovely, new residence.

August May is another gentleman who has chosen the Boulevard as a home site. He is erecting a beautiful residence just opposite Mr. Charlie Hopkin's new house.

Mr. W. C. Sayre is building a nice residence on Currier street near the corner of Courtland avenue.

Captain A. J. West's lovely home on Peachtree will soon be completed, as also will be Mr. George G. King's home in Inman park.

The new addition to the county courthouse is receiving the finishing touches. It will be occupied by the tax collector and receiver and the county commissioners by the 1st of November. Mr. McGill, the contractor, has lost no time in doing the work.

Mr. Albert L. Beck's new residence on Peachtree is almost ready for occupancy. It will be one of the cosiest places on that lovely

Mr. J. C. Freeman's $20,000 mansion on Peachtree, opposite Culpepper's, is assuming elegant proportions. It was designed by Mr. Noorman, the architect, and is to be one of the very finest homes in Atlanta. Just across the street from Mr. Freemont is Mr. Lee Jordan's mansion, which is also being pushed rapidly forward.

Atlanta architects are exceedingly popular and successful in other cities and states.

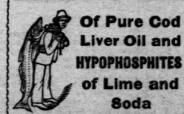

Mr. G. L. Noorman has now on hand six fine residences in Americus, averaging $10,000 each, a city hall let at $25,000, a schoolhouse at $15,000 and a big hotel to cost $100,000, in the same plucky little city, $200,000 being spent in building. A splendid showing for Americus.

In Charlotte, N. C., from which city Mr. Noorman has recently returned, he has in hand the building of a city hall and a residence, and also four residences in Spartanburg.

He is building a schoolhouse, a public library building and a residence in Tallahassee, Fla., averaging $30,000.

In Gadsden, Als., Mr. Noorman is architect for the Fail View hotel, to cost $50,000, besides two $10,000 residences.

NOTICE by the Mayor and General Council of the City of Atlanta of the holding of an election to determine the question whether bonds shall be issued by the water supply of said city, said the assent of the qualified voters of said city being necessary hereto:

Therefore, Be it ordained by the mayor and general council aforesaid, that in accordance with the constitution and laws of said state, and in pursuance of the amendment to the charter of said city authorizing the issue of said bonds, an election shall be held on the 14th day of October, 1890, to determine the question whether said water bonds shall be leisued by said city, and that notice to the people (qualified voters of said city) be published in The Atlanta Constitution, the newspaper in which the sheriff's advertisements for said county are published, for the space of thirty days next preceding the day of said election, as provided by law, said bonds to bear interest at the rate of four (4) per centum per annum, and to run not exceeding thirty years from the date thereof, the interest to be paid semi-annually, on the first days of said bonds to be fully paid off within thirty years of the date of the Issuance thereor.

If the issue of said water bonds is voted by the requisite two-thirds of the qualified voters of said city, then, and before the proposed debt is incurred, an ordinance or ordinances shall be passed providing for the sale and issue thereof, and making provision at the same time for the assessment and collection of the annual taxes sufficient in amount to pay the principal and interest of said debt within thirty years from the date of incurring said indebtedness.

But this shall not operate to increase the annual taxes or real estate or personal property beyond the charter rate of one and one-half (1/2) per cent per annum.

At said election the voters shall have printed or written out their ballots, "For Water Bonds" or written out their ballots, "For Water Bonds" or the charter rate to the voters shall have printed or written on their bailots, "For Water Bonds" or "Against Water Bonds."

Said election shall be held as municipal elections in this city are held, and conducted in like manner, and in accordance with Sections 50s I to 50s M inclusive, of the Code of the state of Georgia.

Approved September 5, 180s.

JOHN T. GLENN, Mayor.

I certify that the foregoing preamble and ordi-nance were adopted by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta on September 1, 1826, and concurred in by the aldermanic board of said city on September 4, 1896, and approved by the mayor of said city September 5, 1890. #### Let Us Keep Cool.

THE CONSTITUTION has refrained until now, that the elections are over, from criticising the attitude of antagonism in which certain of Governor Gordon's supporters have been placing him, in connection with the senatorial race, with the Farmers' Alliance.

The evidences of this antagonism are to be found principally in utterances of certain-papers controlled by these parties, and in the policy of those who, in avowed advocacy of Governor Gordon's senatorial race, seem doing everything calculated to create antagonism between Governor Gordon and the mass of the people who constitute the Farmers' Alliance.

When the nominations for the legislature and congress were had this year, the alliancemen, constituting so great a part of the democratic party, turned out and defeated the efforts of those who were unwilling to conceede to them the right to act within the party on a line which they believed to be to the best public interest.

Alliancemen fresh from the people in most of the counties and districts of the state were chosen. It was the old fight which resulted in Governor Gordon's election as governor, waged over again. Then those who made the most noise, but who are not the majority of the democratic party, were overwhelmed by the farmers; and now the farmers, who are the vast majority of the white democrats of Georgia, in like manner overthrew the opposition. Then those of the politicians who constituted themselves the democratic party of Georgia raised the cry that the democracy was in danger. This was not true. The great democracy was all right, but the politicians were in grave danger.

In all this contest, no hint of any possible breach between Governor Gordon and the alliance or its leaders was heard. In fact, his sympathies were thought and believed to be with them. He was reckoned by them as a warm ally, and it was openly proclaimed that his attitude, as then understood, on their purposes and policies was entirely satisfactory. The alliance and the governor were deemed in perfect accord, and the most friendly relations existed between him and its leaders.

It was the element that was sore with defeat that was eager for revenge on the giorious career. His name is Wheat, and seeking for some leader who was strong enough to carry their weight on his shoulders, and some issue in which success should mean defeat to the alliance and their rehabilitation as a commanding feature in state and local politics.

These gentlemen, therefore, with great art sought for means by which they might divide the governor from the alliance. To this end they industriously circulated rumors that certain alliance leaders were aspirants for the senate Still no breach occurred until in an evil hour the governor was prevailed upon to announce his emphatic opposition to the subtreasury bill, and that no adjustment should be possible the organs of the opposition to the alliance flooded the state with the announcement that Gordon had denounced the subtreasury plan, and said he would not support the bill if it cost him forty elections; yet but a week before in his LaGrange speech the governor had taken a very different attitude. They had carefully studied the situation, and saw that if they could induce the governor, with his wonderful hold on the people, to take this extreme position, the alliance would either have to fight the governor on this issue, which they believed meant its defeat, or by failing to fight would abandon the position already taken all over Georgia in the congressional campaign and suffer in advance all the demoralization of defeat. They judged, and we think wisely, that if defeated or declining a contest, the political influence of the alliance would

As soon as the alliance showed its purpose not to quietly accept this condition of things, but to fight for their financial policy, which was, in fact, the distinguishing principle for which the alliance was contending, these same parties started a campaign of abuse against the leaders of the alliance, its organ and its plans, all over Georgia, so as to further intensify the contest and prevent a possible reconciliation between the governor and the alliance and the consequent failure of their plan. Thus was precipitated a campaign of bitterness based directly in opposition to the alli-

To this end and with this view they have not hesitated to attack every man or interest in the state whereby they thought they saw the chance to divert the farmers from their united movement for financial relief and to divide them on other questions, men and interests in no wise involved in any issue before the people; and they now, with unblushing effrontery, charge on others the strife which they have brought about and in which they have involved a gallant Georgian so irretrievably that the alliance has been forced to antagonize him or yield its convictions. This, too, when such a contest was not sought by the alliance or its leaders, and was wholly unneces

They had everything to gain and noth ing to lose by forcing a contest between the governor and the alliance. The governor, the alliance and every other interest in the state were moving along in perfect harmony, and each and all had everything to lose and nothing to gain by the disturbance of this status, and by anything that would prevent Governor Gordon being elected senator as the unanimous choice of all interests and parties Yet, regardless of the perfect peace prevailing, they inspired discord, and have brought about the present strained condition of affairs which they now charge on other persons and interests.

The people, however, are not to be deceived. Governor Gordon has repeatedly said, in his Eatonton speech and elsewhere, that if he had only maintained silence on the subject of the subtreasury plan, he would have been unanimously elected, and that he knew it when he spoke. This answers forever the charge that the alliance, its leaders, or any one else was seeking to oppose Governor Gordon or even to seek occasion of opposition by asking an expression of opinion from him, and fixes the responsibility for all this trouble on those who, for their selfish ends, induced the governor to depart from the plan which he had adopted—that of conciliation,

We trust, now that the election for members of the legislature has taken place, that these gentlemen who have been raising this strife will let matters alone. What they have done is to be much regretted. From best advices the alliancemen in the legislature will number at least 163, largely more than twothirds. All true friends of Governor Gordon must see how unfortunate are the antagonisms in which he has been in volved with the alliance, and no one who unselfishly wishes for his election will wish to see any further conflicts with any one engendered.

If any large number of alliancemen, less than a majority, really desire his defeat they will be eager to seek aid from all quarters, and any further attacks which the friends of the governor make on any person or interest, converts that person or interest from a friend or neutral to an active foe, whose interest and inclination will lead them to swell the ranks of his opponents.

Let us have a return to good humored methods. When one who advises in temper and has a grievance, real or financial, to redress, or an ax to grind, his advice is liable to be very bad.

A Tumble in Wheat.

The late postmaster of the house of representatives has had a brief and most inhe is about the worst wheat of the republi can crop of this year. Had it not been for Mr. Enloe, of Tennessee, we might not be writing his obituary now. As is well known that gentleman exposed Wheat's villainies and tumbled him out of office.

But though it was in evidence that this postmaster of the house of representatives had been pursuing a systematic course of swindling; had cheated the government from the first day that he entered its service and disgraced himself and his party, he was whitewashed by Reed and the rest of them, and on making restitution of the stolen funds was dismissed with a gentle reprimand.

We can see no difference between Wheat and Silcott-except it be that one ran away and the other was surprised and caught before he had a chance to take the train. They are both fit candidates for the penitentiary, but both have escaped. In defense of his crime Wheat charges that a democratic postmaster once did the same thing; but this was disproved. In other words, he is trying to make a right out of two wrongs. In summing up the record of the present session our republican exchanges are lavish in their praise of the work which the party has accomplished. But in this summing up they have overlooked Mr. Wheat's transactions, and have ignored Commissioner Raum and certain other officials who should go on record with the rest of them. The records of these men form a part of republican history. They should not be consigned to oblivion. It is not just to the party or to them.

The Copyright Business.

In a communication to The New York Evening Post, Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls, who have secured considerable free advertising of a not very profitable variety, raise some new questions with respect to the copyright business. They show that the most pronounced sinners in the line of piracy are the most prominent publishing firms of the north, and the remarks they make are worthy of attention. A year or two ago, when we called attention to the fact that one of the most prominent publishing firms in the country fighting the copyright bill while pretending to be in favor of it, The New York Commercial Advertiser made a severe attack on our statements, demanding the name of the firm and the proof. We are convinced that this demand would never have been made but for the knowledge that our information was of a peculiar character that could not be used. At any rate, the charge we made had its effect, bringing into line the people that had been run to cover, and making of them the most zealous converts to be found in all

The points made by Messrs. Funk & Wagnalls are very good indeed—in fact, we may say they are unanswerable. All the American publishers are and have been on the make, as the phrase is, and not one of them is above taking advantage of the situation. The most honest have been pirates, and the only thing that has converted them is the fact that piracy has become so extensive that all may engage in it. In other words, the honest publishers have been cutting each other's throats to such an extent that they now want to cry quits. The virtue in the situation could be put on the point of a knife-blade without attracting any attention.

Colored Men Protest. The negroes who reside in the state of New York are dissatisfied. They fancy that they have a grievance—and a great oneagainst the state and the republican party, and they have decided to hold a convention in Poughkeepsie some time this month, the object of which will be the establishing of 'colored reform associations' in the assem bly districts of the state.

An exchange says that "the purport of this movement is to mass the colored voters in a comprehensive effort to improve their political condition." Here is the "call" for the convention:

Gentlemen, the time has come when we must act, and that quickly, for a network is being woven around us, and unless we soon arouse our-selves we will be hemmed in on all sides. Glance see there, among the waiters, young men who are capable of holding positions of trust. Our wives and daughters are receiving an education which they are not given an opportunity to use; our youths are given trades and are not permitted to work at them. Now, the question comes, why do not the party, the men whom we have supported to a man up to this day, remedy this? What is the gift of a $600 or $600 position to a few in comparson to the welfare and uplifting of the masses; Now is the time to act, and by that act place your selves in a position to demand your rights, not beg for them. Therefore, you should place your allot where it will do you and yours the good. Our heroes fought and fell; we must fight and rise. Enslave yourselves no longer with any party; divide and commingle with all.

Such expressions as the above, coming from the colored people of the "free and liberal north," will perhaps be surprising to many. They are evidently not as well off as their brethren of the south-"our youths are given trades and are not permitted to work at them: the party which we have supported to a man" has thrown us overboard and we are left to sink or swim. We infer from these sentiments that ther is a race problem at the north, and that it is assuming a graver form than the same problem in the south. It is eminently deserving of the attention and thoughtful consideration of Mr. Cable and other lecturers who make race troubles a specialty, and they might ponder it with profit to themselves and the parties most concerned.

But in many respects this protest of the colored people of the north is not surprising. While they deplore the absence of the rights that northern extremists are advocating for them in the south; while it is evident that they have no privileges at all in the north. and are even debarred from working at the common trades, it will be seen that their main grievance is against the republican party, which to them is a party of unreleemed pledges, which asks their votes and has no further use for them after the returns are in.

This political dissatisfaction on the part of the negroes is not confined to New York alone-it is general-for the negroes of the south are breaking out of the republican harness and are either voting with the democrats, or not voting at all. They know when they have enough.

We might draw another moral from this 'manifesto'' of the republican negroes of New York, and it can be given in a few words: "The southern negroes are better off in every respect than the negroes of the north; they enjoy greater prosperity; they have more rights and more liberty.

Mr. Porter and the Cens Mr Porter who has undertaken to man age the present census, is being severely criticised by the press in a number of cities. The Indianapolis Journal has been the last to take up the cudgels against him and his enumerators, but it is now engaged in raising a lively row on Mr. Harrison's camping

If it be true, as The Journal charges, that the returns are "muddled," and that seven bills out of every ten sent to the office are found to be inaccurate or carelessly made out, what kind of a census can the people hope to get? It is charged in many sections that Mr Porter is not equal to the task with which he has been entrusted; that he has not appreciated fully the importance of it, and has allowed the census to take care of itself.

A wail is also going up from the census takers, many of whom have not been paid for their work. But the excuse is made that their work was inefficient, and that their figures will not do to swear by.

This statement alone is an evidence of the general inaccuracy of the returns, and unless recounts are ordered in localities where the work is as superficial, we will have a census which will be utterly worthless to the

On the Right Line

THE CONSTITUTION has expressed its views on the attitude of Judge Haskell, of South Carolina, in regard to the Tillman-which is now the democratic-movement in that state. Yesterday we commented on the judge's manifesto, and endeavored to point out wherein we thought he had erred.

The Charleston News and Courier of Wednesday contains an interview with Colonel James A. Hoyt, ex-chairman of the democratic executive committee of South Carolina, n which that gentleman gives his views on Judge Haskell's position, and preaches sound democratic doctrine.

Colonel Hoyt says that he does not agree with Judge Haskell, and thinks it suicidal for any portion of the democracy to take such position. He is in line with THE CONSTI TUTION and The Charleston News and Courier in making this statement, and when he says that Captain Tillman and his associates were nominated by the democratic state convention, regularly convened under the lawfully constituted authority of the the lawfully constituted authority of the democratic party in the state, and as the nominees of the party they should receive its support. Colonel Hoyt says:

By this course I do not endorse an iota of the charges made during the recent campaign by Mr. Tillman and others, nor uphold for a moment the slanders and misrepresentations of the past six months. I am not one whit less opposed to the methods pursued by some men to get into office and control public affairs, and will not abate my opposition to such methods within the democratic

I am fully convinced that the safety and the highest interests of our entire people are securely linked with the destiny of the democratic party, state and national. We cannot disrupt the party in South Carolina upon local issues and expect to continue it as a controlling and united force in federal politics. There is too much at stake, not only as to the peace and security of our own state, but in the great contest which will be waged two years hence, when the electoral vote of South Carolina will help to decide questions of immeasurable importance compared with the futile aspirations of the Tillman campaign.

This is the right kind of talk, and it should be endorsed by every democrat who has the welfare of the state at heart. It is what THE CONSTITUTION has been endeavoring to impress upon the people of Georgia, South Carolina and the whole south. There is no safety in dissension and division; the ranks of the democracy must be unbroken, and we must march in solid and united strength if we would gain the victory. That sentiment: "Stand by the nominees!" should be the motto of our campaigns.

No Time for Ridicule.

We have frequently twitted Chicago on her tardiness in the matter of the world's fair. There is no doubt that there has been much unnecessary delay in the work, and much valuable time was lost in wrangling over a site. But now that a site has been selected—for such is the latest information and a show of work has been made, we are willing to bid the people Godspeed, and waft them our best wishes for the success of the enterprise.

This does not appear to be the sentiment of the entire country, however, and we notice that many of our northern exchanges are still holding Chicago and the fair up to public ridicule This is wrong. The world was laughing at us on account of the delay to which the great project was subjected when there seemed to be a probability of its going to pieces; but now that the work has een commenced, we should not encourage that laughter by lightly considering a national enterprise which should be a matter of pride to every city in the union.

The fair does not belong to Chicago alone the United States are interested in it, and as far as they can, the states should unite to make it a success. As a site for the fair Chicago was not the choice of the south: but now that she has it, the south is resigned and will doubtless do what she can in the interest of the great national undertaking.

This is the proper spirit; we have no desire to hold this country up as a laughing stock for the nations. Let us forgive Chicago her sins of the past and encourage her in the work of the future. As far as the world's fair is concerned, we share alike in her triumph or failure.

A PHILADELPHIA paper says the south should be watched. We trust the Waterbury movement will be applied.

A case which promises to be of general interest will be heard before the United States supreme court on the 14th of October. It is the case of Shibaya Jugiro, a Japanese prisoner, now at Sing Sing, awaiting the fulfillment of his sentence to death by electrocution. It is alleged that the machines which the state has in use can generate a normal force of only 1,050 voits, and that that force is only adequate to immediately overcome the resistance of a body of 23,100 ohms. The prisoner asserts that his electrical resistance exceeds 500,000 ohms and that, therefore, the use of such machines as are available in New York would be incapable of causing his instantaneous death. His death, indeed, might be accomplished through their agency, but it would be by the gradual reduction of his resistance, as the result of a succession of painful shocks and the slow torture of consuming heat.

GOSSIP OF A DAY.

Mr. L. P. Hillyer, of Macon, was in the city yesterday in the interest of the new Cumber-land Island Company, of which he is one of the principal stockholders. He is an enthusiast upon the subject of Cumberland island, and the enthusiasm is contagious.

"We are meeting with success in the organization of our company," said Mr. Hillyer. "From all parts of the state come requests for stock, until we have had over $100,000 of the $165,000 taken. The stockholders are from all the principal Georgia cities and towns, showing that the people everywhere take lively interest in the project. That is just what we want. It is our aim to make thi a Georgia enterprise, and to that end we want to place the stock in all parts of the state. Our aim is to have Georgians to own and control this popular resort, and we think we offer splendid inducements to them to do so."

The readers of THE CONSTITUTION are familiar with the plans of the gentlemen who are engineering the Cumberland Island Company, and of the offer they make. Mr. Hillye and Mr. Duncan, two of the most prominent young business men in Macon, conceived the idea, and some of the most conservative men in the state have given it the endorsement, and have subscribed to the stock. These gentlemen are especially anxious to have Atlanta take good proportion of the stock for Atlanta sends more people to Cumberland every year than any other two cities in the state combined.

"Cumberland island," Mr. Hillyer continued, "is our most accessible seaside resort, and is in every way the best for Georgia per ple. Our plan is, you will remember, to or ganize with a capital stock of $165,000, which $75,000 will be used in paying for the hotel site and the 1,000 acres of land com-prising that end of the island. The balance of the money will be expended upon new hotel, the electric railway and other improvements we intend to The hotel will have accommodations for 1,000 people; and if the present popularity of Cumberland is any criterion to judge by, that will be found none too large. Aside from the pleasure to be gotten out of such a resort, I think we offer splendid financial inducement o stockholders. Is it any exaggeration to say that Cumberland will clear to the stockholders $50,000 a year? We think not. And that means a pretty good interest on a capital stock of $165,000. Well, you see that is the offer we make. We are anxious, as I have said, to have Atlanta largely represented in the company, and have associated with us Mr. Charley Northen, who will take subscriptions to the stock. Atlanta ought to

All that Mr. Hillyer says about Atlanta's ove for Cumberland is certainly true. Everybody who has gone there has wondered at the place not being one of the famous resorts of the country. Under this new regime, however, the likelihood is that it will be.

Senatorial talk was plentiful about the streets vesterday, and many were the opinions ed about General Gordon's cha election. Noticeably prominent in the talk were the references to Governor-Elect Northen as a possible candidate. By many alliancemen and people ouside of the alliance, Governor Northen is spoken of as a man whom the alli-ance members of the legislature may put forward as their candidate.

Mr. E. R. Hodgson, the famous cotton buyer of Athens, was in Atlanta yesterday on business for the Henderson Warehouse Company.

With the new railroads now in course of construction and projected, opening up the most fertile fields of northeast Georgia and South Carolina, and with such wonderful water power easily manipulated, it requires no prophet to foresee the greatest cotton dealing city in the empire state

Everything depended upon the vote in that county, and THE CONSTITUTION was constantly besieged by the friends of Mr. Venable and Mr. Todd anxious to hear the result.

Both gentlemen were hopeful, and their friends were equally sanguine. Noon came and went by without bringing the information so much desired, though many rumors were constantly coming in. At noon the Fulton county managers met in

Mr. Todd came up from his home about noon, and for two or three hours was upon the streets, receiving the congratulations of his friends and meeting new ones. He was greatly pleased at his victory, and asserted that it was just what he had antici-"I have never been in a political fight be-on "he remarked yesterday, "and I don't think I will ever enter another." "Why not?" he was asked. "The work is too hard, and has many unpleasant features about it a man never knows until he gets into one."

"Then too," he continued, "many unkind things are often said about a man that would never have been uttered if he had not gone into the campaign. I have tried to be pleasant all during the fight, and think I have. I have said nothing unkind of anyone, and shall assume my chair in the senate with an ill feeling to wards no one and a heart full of love for all."

"What will be your course — ?" "I think the people have been fully advised as to that. I have spoken and written enough before the election to post them fully on my course, and I see no reason to change or violate any thing I have said or written."

Mr. Todd was born in McIntosh county, and has lived in Georgia all his life.

He is now thirty-seven years of age.

Mr. Todd resides below Hapeville, where he owns a pretty plantation. He passes his time in farming and managing a large diary from which many Atlantians are supplied.

He is a married man and has a most interesting family.

Mr. Todd is a Methodist minister, and is one of the most faithful and industrious workers in his denomination.

THE DEKALB ALLIANCE.

An Important Meeting Yesterday and Some Resolutions Adopted.

The DeKalb alliance held an important meeting yesterday which was largely attended, and several matters came up for consideration. In addition to the senetarial execution the

In addition to the senatorial question, the news of which appears in another column, the following resolutions were unanimously adopted: adopted:

In our opinion the exigencies of the times demand a thorough revision of the common school system of the state. It is time the people should take this matter in their own hands. The working of the present system is unequal and unjust. We, therefore, suggest that our senators and representatives from this senatorial district demand, at the hands of the general assembly:

1. That experienced teachers be put in charge of the state school system.

2. That uniform text books be adopted, and books prepared by southern authors given the preference.

3. That the school fund arising from taxes paid by the white people shall be appropriated exclusively for the education of white children, giving the colored people the benefit of taxes paid by themselves.

4. That the supreme court be authorized to charter the white residents of a militia district with full power to assess themselves voluntarily for school purposes and to elect members of the board of education for their district; that their pro rata of the school fund be paidşto and disbursed by them, the colored people having the same privilege with their fund; that the school fund be paid per capita and not per dien.

their fund that the school fund and not per diem.

The representatives elect from DeKalb are heartily in favor of these resolutions.

DIRECT TRADE CONVENTION ENDORSED.

The following was also adopted unanimously:

Whereas, Adirect trade convention will assemble in Atlanta, Ga., on the second Wednesday in January next, to inaugurate the shipment of the products of our forest, fields and factories direct from our ports to foreign lands.

Beselved, That we heartily approve the objects of said convention and bid it persevers until commercial independence for our section is secured, and southern brain and southern brawn receive that recognition which is their just due.

For Not Paying Their Taxes by the 1st of derer-Some Other Matters.

A number of railroads and street railways have failed to pay their state taxes by the 1st of October, as the law requires, and have brought upon themselves a penalty of $500 for it.

The following railroads are to be fined:
Lexington Terminal, Smithonia and Dunlap, ersville and Tennille, Georgia Southern and Florida, Macon and Birmingham and the Brunswick Terminal.

And the following street railways: City and Suburban and the Coast Line, both of Savannah; the Gainesville and Hall county, the Rome, and the North and South of Rome. Since the law was passed only one road has reretofore rendered itself liable to the penalty. That is the Atlanta and Florida.

miles from Madison.

In the death of Dr. Johnson the medical profession lost an able votary, and Georgia lost a brilliant mind.

At the time of his death, Dr. Johnson was about forty-six years old. In the year 1869 or 1870, he left Morgan county and moved to Atlanta, where he practiced medicine for a number of years, standing very highly as a physician here.

Later in his life he left Atlanta and went to California, where he resided for a few years, returning to Georgia a few years ago.

His remains will be interred in Griffin early this morning, having left Madison at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, followed by a number of friends and relatives.

During his stay in Atlanta, Mr. Johnson quickly climbed to a high position as a practicing physician.

Some of the pathetic stories that come to light constantly in the business world show how much might be accomplished by a little well-directed charity. The girl had no money, and she is obliged to support an aged mother. For two months she has been trying to save up money to go south with, and in detailing the facts yesterday she announced that she was a little bit discouraged. nounced that she was a little bit discouraged. No wonder. Her salary is $4 a week at the office where she works, and she receives $1 extra for copying papers after hours. The problem of saving enough money for her southern trip of what is left from this income after the weekly expenses have been paid is one that might stag-ger a financial genius.

The Woman's Christian Temperance Union has a proposition from the East Tennessee Railroad Company, through Mr. Kight, of the passenger asylum at Indian Springs, but nothing has been done so far. GREAT DANGER. They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in Regard to Them.

When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all the many ills He inflicted upon his fallen creation none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without eausing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant disease. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you satisfactory results. Many laddes are afficted with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. Respectfully, Dr. R. G. Jacksov.

THE BONDED DEBT.

Comparison of Figures Under Cleveland and Harrison

Washington, October 2.—The director of the mint said this afternoon that the govern-ment will buy largely of silver tomorrow, pro-vided the offers are satisfactory. It is stated at the treasury department that the decrease in the bonded debt of the United the decrease in the bonded debt of the United States during the past month, $42,316,240, was greater than in any month since the period of refunding operations under Secretary Sherman, the nearest approach to it being $26,593,830, in the month of October, 1888. The decrease in the bonded debt for the first nineteen months of the present administration, has been $205,714,410, an average monthly reduction of $10,827,074. The decrease for the first nineteen months of President Cleveland's administration was $76,968,020, an average monthly reduction [of $4,050,948. The total decrease during the four years of President Cleveland's administration was $341,396,980, an average monthly reduction of $341,396,980, an average monthly reduction of $7,112,437. The foregoing figures relate exclusively to the bonded debt, and not to a "debt less cash in the treasury" at various dates specified.

on Hand.

Washington, October 2.—The capitol this morning was almost descrited. A few sight-seers were in the corridors and the rotunda. A small army of scrubbers was engaged in the task of effacing from the walls and steps the evidences of the wear and tear of the tenmonthe's session. Not a senator appeared in the chamber, and in the hall of the house, Owens, of Ohio, was the sole member, and sat writing in a cloud of disty air. "Fall house-cleaning" pervaded every nook and corner of the huge building.

The Sun's Cotton Review. The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, October 2.—Futures opened partially at one point advance, closing steady four to six points advance from yesterday's closing prices. The market today was not the New York; it was some other market, it was in fact, merely a reflex of the Liverpool market. The New York cotton exchange, what there was of it, was weak, yet the values in response to the continued improvement. prices in response to the continued improvement at Liverpool, made a small advance. Since the at Liverpool, made a small advance. Since the heavy rains at the south there is a disposition to look for relatively better prices for higher grades, and orders were to avoid damp cotton. Buying telegrams to the south avoided the Mississippi valley, while offers of cotton from Texas were quickly taken up. Spot cotton was quite active for home consumption and high grades more firmly held.

Resolved, That the bid of the Howard Harrison Iron Company, for cast iron pipe and specials, it being the lowest bid, be accepted by the city, subject to pending question or measures as to the right of the city, and final approval by the mayor and council and further subject to changes, if any, the city may order in sizes and thickness and proportionate higher tests of pipe. The Howard Harrison Iron Company's bid was to furnish straigh iron pipe at $22.24 per ton and to supply "specials" at $2.50 per hundred...

The joint session decided to report all bids for pipe-laying, because Engineer Clayton's report showed that the city could do the work as cheap, if not cheaper, than by contract.

The bids for filters were considered, and all were rejected. They were rejected because the filters will not be needed for eighteen months, and during that time the fluctuation in prices may benefit the city.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE. A Story Which Shows Its Fallibility.

The following narrative, by a distinguished English surgeon, while it strikingly exhibits the fallible and uncertain nature of circumstantial evidence, affords also a convincing proof of the indispensable necessity of procuring medical testimony of the highest order, in all criminal cases relating to injuries of the person: "As I was passing the Pack-Horse, Turn-

amob of persons of the lowest order, assembled around the door of that inn, who were very loud in their execrations against some person who was suspected of having murdered his brother; in corroboration of which, I was told that the brother's bones had been found near the premises where he formerly resided, upon view of which a jury was then sitting, after an adjournment from the day preceding. I found that two surgeons had been subpenaed to inspect the remains and I had no doubt that every information as to their character had been obtained; [curiosity alone, therefore, induced me to make my way into the room, where I found that the coroner and, I believe, a double jury was sitting for the second day and were engaged in an investigation which tended to show that a farmer and a market gardener at Sutton court farm had a few years before a brother living with him who was engaged on the farm, but whose conduct was so dissolute and irregular to a degree that often provoked the anger of his elder brother and sometimes begot strife and violence between them; that the temper of the elder brother was as little under control as the conduct of the younger, and, in fine, that they lived very uncomfortably together.

"One winter night, when the ground was covered with snow, the youngest brother absonded from the house (for they both lived together), by letting himself down from his chamber window, and when he was missed the ensuing morning, his footsteps were clearly traced in the snow to a considerable distance, nor were there any other footsteps but his own. Time passed on, and after a lapse of some few years no tidings were heard of his retreat, nor, perhaps, have there ever been since. Some alterations in the grounds surrounding the house having been undertaken by a subsequent tenar (for the elder brother had then let the farm), a skeleton was raised to the utmost, and a jury impaneled to investigate the case.

"After listening attentively to these details, I ventured to request of the coroner to be allowed to examine the bones, which I found were contained in a hamper basket at the farther and of the room, and I felt much flattered by his immediate compliance, for he desired the parish beadle, who was in attendance, to place them upon the table; and having myself disposed them in

A FRONTIER HOUSEWIFE. How Jack Jilkins of the Texas Divide Learned Common Sense.

From The New York Times. Mrs. Jilkins called Leish and 'Lisbeth and set them to "seein" bout supper;" sent "Checket" to the spring for water; directed old Mack, the herder, to go up on the bluff and unhobble Black Billy, so that he might come down to drink; and, having thus set the varlous wheels of her domestic machinery in mo-tion, settled her camp chair at a comfortable angle against the stout codar post which formed the central support for the "fly" that shaded the entrance of her tent, and proceeded with her knitting and conversation

"Yes," said she, "I'm boss o' this ranch, and Jilkins knows it. If it hadn't a' been for me he wouldn't a' had a bunch o' cattle or anything on four legs on the range, and Jack Jil-kins would a' been a punchin' sheep right now for a few 'bits' a month and his board, and I'd been lookin' at the catfish in the river to supply me, without any lard to fry 'em in, either He was as tricky as one o' them two-year-olds of Baldwin's when I first had him; he'd be goin' all right, and, first thing you knowed, he'd buck and pitch when you warn't expectin' it, and you'd be nowhere. I call to mind now just when I first put my foot down and let him ee as how I was goin' to be boss, and he might as well come down quiet like and give in.

"Twas when Leish warn't more than five or six years old. Josh was fourteen; if I remember right he'd jest broke the brown filly. We were pretty bad off then. Jilkins had the repthe spring and fall he'd take in a sight money goin' round with the shearers one ranch to the next, but then all night they would gamble, and mostly he'd lose, and we had moved so often for fresh range, as he said (for fresh devilment as I knowed), that we never had 'cumulated nothin' worth speakin' of, and weren't counted as bein' nobody; and the Divide that Jilkins's chickens were so used movin' that when they saw the wagon bein' hitched up they'd come up, lay down, and cross their legs a waitin' to be tied, without givin' us the trouble o' runnin' them down.

"Well! I 'monstrated and 'monstrated with Jilkins 'bout this triflin' way o' doin', and he wouldn't pay no 'tention to nuthin' I'd say. Finally, jest as we'd got settled down there on the river, by that place they called Dripping Spring, where there was a nice little stretch o' grass for the sheep and a good place to pen 'em at night where the wolves didn't prowl, he took a notion that he'd move over the Nuaces, and he'd sit up at night, when I was takin' my dip o' snuff and thinkin' what a no 'count thing he was for all his good looks, and tell me what he goin' to do when he got over there; how the range there was so fine and the flock wouldn't be crowded; how he was going in partnership with Si Henderson, and Si was to get one o' them thievin' Mexican rascals (jest from across the Rio with only a blanket and a dirk knife for clothes) to herd for 'em; and how but—never mind, I'il get on and show you how I squelched it all.

"I never said much : I listened to all Jilkins's swagger and talk as to how well he was goin' to do over on the Nuaces. I'n haerd him say them same things before 'bout other places we'd been goin' to. I begun to pack and git ready jest as if I didn't care two bits 'bout movin' way off there and runnin' the risk of my life with them there treachersome Mexicans, who'd jestas lief cut your throat for a dollar as not. Jilkins, the got ready, too. He hauled the wagon down in the river andswelled the tires (it had been pretty dry that year), and then he hauled it up over the rocks again and greased the wheels good, and fixed a place in the cover for the stovepipe to come out of, 'cause he said as how it was likely to be kinder cool at night, and we'd need the stove. He patched up the chicken coops good an' strong and tied 'em well on behind the wagon; and when the mornin' came that he'd 'pointed to leave he put a good 'lowance o' things in a big pack on old Rocky's back and hitched him on, to lead, so as the two other horses wouldn't be put to it so hard, 'cause he said there was some mighty strainin' hills 'fore we'd git cross the shawl, and I said, says I: "'Jack Jilkins! Not a wheel shall turn! I's been leadin' this 'now-I'm-here-now-I'm-there kind o' life long enough, and I mean to stay right here by this drippin' spring, and I mean you to stay, too, and Si Henderson kin wait till he sees you ain't coming. You jest undo them things and pack 'em back to where they come from. You turn them fowl's loose and take that pack off old Rocky's back. I's not goin' to stir from here till Rock is too old to help haul. Drive your sheep back on this range, and don't you never let me make a fool of you like this again.'

"He knocked down the bedstead and put it up careful in some old wool sackin' so as it wouldn't git scratched, and tied the heavy skillet and big pot (that I used when I wanted to save my cookin' stove) underneath the wagon with the water keg and two canteens full, 'cause 'twould be as much as 35 miles till we'd git to water; and then, when all was ready, the chickens caught, and the cat and dogs all in the notion of goin', I stepped out, with my best sun bonnet on and my plaid

"I shouldn't wonder, if you wanted anything done 'round this place, now, but that you'd have to ask me, and since that day Jack Jilkins has been very careful how he says what he is goin' to do without I give the word first. If he ever does, all I've got to do 'mind him o that mornin' when he was a-gatherin' up the lines to drive off, and he had to spend the most part of the day in fixin' the things back and bein' sorry he'd said he'd go.

By the system of illumination the consumers are charged only for actual consumption, an apparatus being provided by which the precise time of usage of the lights is registered, the same as the amount of gas consumed is meas ured by a gas meter.

It is easily seen that this feature will make electric illumination in residences very popuular. It will, it is claimed, be fully as cheap

The capital stock of $100,000 will be largely increased at once. Already all the stock has been subscribed for, and in a short while active work will be begun.

A considerable proportion of the capital to be invested is furnished by northern capitalists, though the Atlanta money in the enterprise is not inconsiderable.

The publications of The Constitution awakened inquiry among some prospectors who knew of the existence of large volumes of sulphuret cres which had been unexplored and undetermined as to their mineral values. The result is the discovery of outcrops of sulphur-bearing pyrites in vast volumes. These are non-copper bearing ores, and the concentrates shows 53.3 sulphur, and is worth 20 cents a unit. These ores carry gold, silver and nickel, and extend through Alabama, Georgia and North Carolina into Virginia, and in them

GREAT DANGER

They Should Be Avoided-A Few Points in

When the Creator in His wrath (or for His glory?) saw fit to expel His first creation, His own image, from the garden of Eden, He placed on them the curse of disease and death. In after generations He visited His chosen people with many "plagues for their disobedience," but of all y ills He inflicted upon his fallen creat are more painful, more loathsome, or more e in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful none are more painful, more loathsome, or more errible in its effects than fistula in ano; fearful in its ravages and dangerous to life, robbing one of all the pleasures of living. But, as in all other afflictions, He has given a remedy; science in its primitive state was unable to utilize the remedy without causing most intense suffering, and oftentimes leaving the victim in a condition much worse than at first. It was left for the progressive physicians of the present age to offer you a pleasant cure for this most unpleasant discase. You need no longer fear the "knife," with all its pain and dangers, for it is unnecessary. I have laid aside all harsh means and treat you by a rational treatment that when properly applied for a sufficient time will cure you. Have you fistula? If so, it is unnecessary to ask you if you wish to be cured of it. But do you wish to avoid the intense pain of a severe operation, or are you wedded to the old belief that you cannot be cured without the crude and painful means formerly employed? If you are, I have nothing to offer you. If you are not, I offer you the very latest that science can give you. I have cured many by this rational method, and I offer the same to you confidently, promising you gatisfactory results. Many laddes are afficted with fistula. To all I say, do not let your timidity prevent you from availing yourself of this opportunity to obtain a cure. My arrangement for privacy are all you could wish. Promising to verify all my claims. A LEGISLATOR'S PERIL

Chased by a Mob and Compelled to Surren GUTHRIE, October 2.—The bill locating the permanent capital at Oklahoma City passed the upper house of the territorial legislature this afternoon and now awaits the signature of the governor to become a law.

Before action had been taken on the bill in the upper house a motion in the lower house to reconsider the action of yesterday was adopted. Friends of the measure, however, prevailed upon Speaker Daniels to sign the bill after the vote of reconsideration, and Representative Perry immediately possessed him-self of the measure and was hurrying over to the chamber of the upper house to obtain the signature of the presiding officer of that body. AN EXCITING CHASE!

The vigilant enemies of the measure ob served the move, and the legislative body be came a howling mob. Spectators joined mem bers on the floor, and an attack was made upon Speaker Daniels, and it was demanded of him, in a peremptory manner, that he see to it that the bill was returned to that body. Clerk Daniels referred the crowd to Perry, who was just about to escape from the hall, and who in the meantime handed it to Representative Nesbitt. Perry ran into the street with the mob at his heels. He was caught, and the mob at his heels. He was caught, and some one cried:

"Hang him!"
The cry was taken up and became general. The crowd was in earnest, and Perry begged for mercy and turned his pockets inside out.
"Nesbitt has the bill," he cried. Nesbitt was in the crowd, and a rush was made for him. Nesbitt kept ahead of the mob for four blocks; then his strength failed him and he surrendered. He was marched back to the hall, where he was compelled to deposit the bill on the clerk's desk.

THE GOVERNOR OBEYS.

Speaker Daniels took the bill and, accompanied by W. C. Thompson, of The News, as a witness, repaired to the governor's mansion, where, in their presence, the governor erased his signature, saying: "I signed this bill under a misapprehension." in the meantime, Captain Cavenaugh, post commander, and United States Marshal Grimes appeared in the representative hall and calmed the excited crowd, which still de-manded the punishment of Perry and Nesbitt.

TEN MONTHS OF LEGISLATION. Nominations Which President Harrison Has Sent In.

Washington, October 2.—In the ten months of the session that closed yesterday, President Harrison sent to the senate 3,837 nominations, Harrison sent to the senate 3,837 nominations, of which all but twelve were confirmed. As many of these nominations contained the names of more than one person, they represented probably 4,500 appointments. Several hundred of these were postmasters at offices which have become presidential through the growth of business. They also include the appointments in connection with the census, nearly all of which are temporary in their nature.

In the first session of the forty-ninth con-gress, which lasted eight months, President Cleveland sent to the senate 2,696 nominations. Among the nominations which failed of onfirmation are the following:
William Monahan, Ohio, Consul Hamilton

Horace W. Metcalf, Maine, consul Ber-

THE BONDED DEBT.

Comparison of Figures Under Cleveland and Harrison. Washington, October 2.—The director of the mint said this afternoon that the government will buy largely of silver tomorrow, pro-vided the offers are satisfactory.

It is stated at the treasury department that the decrease in the bonded debt of the United the decrease in the bonded debt of the United States during the past month, $42,316,240, was greater than in any month since the period of refunding operations under Secretary Sherman, the nearest approach to it being $26,593,830, in the month of October, 1888. The decrease in the bonded debt for the first nineteen months of the present administration, has been $205,714,410, an average monthly reduction of $10,827,074. The decrease for the first nineteen months of President Cleveland's administration was $76,968,020, an average monthly reduction of $4,050,948. The total decrease during the four years of President Cleveland's administration was $341,396,980, an average monthly reduction of $7,112,437. The foregoing figures relate exclusively to the bonded debt, and not to a "debt less cash in the treasury" at various washington, October 2.—The capitol this morning was almost deserted. A few sight-seers were in the corrifors and the rotunda. A small army of scrubbers was engaged in the task of effacing from the walls and steps the evidences of the wear and toar of the tenmonths' session. Not a senator appeared in the chamber, and in the hall of the house, Owens, of Ohio, was the sole member, and sat writing in a cloud of disty air. "Fall house-cleaning" pervaded every nook and corner of the huge building.

The Sun's Cotton Review.

New York, October 2.—Futures opened partially at one point advance, closing steady four to six points advance from yesterday's closing prices. The market today was not the New York; it was some other market, it was in fact, merely a reflex of the Liverpool market. The New York cotvon exchange, what there was of it, was weak, yet the prices in response to the continued improvement at Liverpool, made a small advance. Since the heavy rains at the south there is a disposition to look for relatively better prices for higher grades, and orders were to avoid damp cotton. Buying telegrams to the south avoided the Mississippi valley, while offers of cotton from Texas were quickly taken up. Spot cotton was quite active for home consumption and high grades more firmly held.

CIRCUMSTANTIAL EVIDENCE. A Story Which Shows Its Fallibility.

From The New York Ledger.

The following narrative, by a distinguished English surgeon, while it strikingly exhibits the fallible and uncertain nature of circumstantial evidence, affords also a convincing proof of the indispensable necessity of procur-ing medical testimony of the highest order, in all criminal cases relating to injuries of the

"As I was passing the Pack-Horse, Turn-hamgreen, my attention was attracted by a mob of persons of the lowest order, assembled around the door of that inn, who were very amb of persons of the lowest order, assembled around the door of that inn, who were very loud in their execrations against some person who was suspected of having murdered his brother; in corroboration of which, I was told that the brother's bones had been found near the premises where he formerly resided, upon view of which a jury was then sitting, after an adjournment from the day preceding. I found that two surgeons had been subpœnaed to inspect the remains and I had no doubt that every information as to their character had been obtained; fcuriosity alone, therefore, induced me to make my way into the room, where I found that the coroner and, I believe, a double jury was sitting for the second day and were engaged in an investigation which tended to show that a farmer and a market gardener at Sutton court farm had a few years before a brother living with him who was engaged on the farm, but whose conduct was so dissolute and irregular to a degree that often provoked the anger of his elder brother and sometimes begot strife and violence between them; that the temper of the elder brother was as little under control as the conduct of the younger, and, in fine, that they lived very uncomfortably together.

"One winter night, when the ground was covered with snow, the youngest brother absonded from the house (for they both lived together), by letting himself down from his chamber window, and when he was missed the ensuing morning, his footsteps were clearly traced in the snow to a considerable distance, nor were there any other footsteps but his own. Time passed on, and after a lapse of some few years no tidings were heard of his retreat, nor, perhaps, have there ever been since. Some alterations in the grounds surrounding the house having been undertaken by a subsequent tenant (for the elder brother had treat, nor, pernaps, have there ever been since. Some alterations in the grounds surrounding the house having been undertaken by a subsequent tenant (for the elder brother had then left the farm), a skeleton was dug up, and the circumstances seemed to show so conclusively that one brother had murdered the other, that the popular clamor was raised to the utmost, and a jury impaneled to investigate the case.

other, that the popular clamor was raised to the utmost, and a jury impaneled to investigate the case.

"After listening attentively to these details, I ventured to request of the coroner to be allowed to examine the bones, which I found were contained in a hamper basket at the farther end of the room, and I felt much flattered by his immediate compliance, for he desired the parish beadle, who was in attendance, to place them upon the table; and having myself disposed them in their natural order I found that they represented a person of short stature, and from the obliteration of the sutures of the skull and the worn-down state of the teeth must have belonged to an aged person. But what was my surprise when I reconstructed the bones of the trunk to be those of a female. I immediately communicated the fact to the jury and requested that the two medical men who had before given their opinions might be sent for, one of whom attended and without a moment's hesitation corroborated my report.

"I need not add that the proceedings were instantly at an end, and an innocent man received the amende honorable, in the shape of an apology from all present in which the coroner heartily joined. It has since been proved beyond all doubt that the spot where the bones were found was formerly the sight of a large gravel pit in which hordes of gipsies not only assembled but occasionally buried their dead, and perhaps more skeletons are yet to be found in that vicinity."

A FRONTIER HOUSEWIFE.

How Jack Jilkins of the Texas Divide From The New York Times.

Mrs. Jilkins called Leish and 'Lisbeth and set them to "seein" bout supper;" sent "Cheekeet" to the spring for water; directed old Mack, the herder, to go up on the bluff and unhobble Black Billy, so that he might come down to drink; and, having thus set the various wheels of her domestic machinery in mo tion, settled her camp chair at a comfortable angle against the stout codar post which formed the central support for the "fly" that shaded the entrance of her tent, and proceeded with ner knitting and conversation. "Yes," said she, "I'm boss o' this ranch, and Jilkins knows it. If it hadn't a' been for me he wouldn't a' had a bunch o' cattle or any thing on four legs on the range, and Jack Jil-kins would a' been a punchin' sheep right now for a few 'bits' a month and his beard, and I'd been lookin' at the catash in the river to supply me, without any lard to fry 'em in, either. He was as tricky as one o' them two-year-olds of Baldwin's when I first had him; he'd be goin' all right, and, first thing you knowed he'd buck and pitch when you warn't expectin it, and you'd be nowhere. I call to mind now just when I first put my foot down and let him see as how I was goin' to be boss, and he might as well come down quiet like and give in.

"Twas when Leish warn't more than five or six years old. Josh was fourteen; if I remember right he'd jest broke the brown filly. We were pretty bad off then. Jilkins had the reputation of bein' a first-class shearer, and in the spring and fall he'd take in a sight o' money goin' round with the shearers from one ranch to the next, but then all night they would gamble, and mostly he'd lose, and we had moved so often for fresh range, as he said (for fresh devilment as I knowed), that we never had 'cumulated nothin' worth speakin of, and weren't counted as bein' nobody; and I heard as how there was a sayin' 'round on the Divide that Jilkins's chickens were so used to movin' that when they saw the wagon bein hitched up they'd come up, lay down, and cross their legs a waitin' to be tied, without givin' us the trouble o' runnin' them down.

"Well! I 'monstrated and 'monstrated with Jilkins 'bout this triflin' way o' doin', and he wouldn't pay no 'tention to nuthin' I'd say. Finally, jest as we'd got settled down there on the river, by that place they called Dripping Spring, where there was a nice little stretch of grass for the sheep and a good place to pen 'en at night where the wolves didn't prowl, he took a notion that he'd move over the Nuaces and he'd sit up at night, when I was takin my dip o' snuff and thinkin' what a no 'count thing he was for all his good looks, and tell me what he goin' to do when he got over there; how the range there was so fine and the flock wouldn't be crowded; how he was going in partnership with Si Henderson, and Si was to get one o' them thievin' Mexican rascals (jest from across the Rio with only a blanket and a dirk knife for clothes) to herd for 'em; and how but—never mind, I'll get on and show you how I squelched it all.

"I never said much; I listened to all Jilkins' swagger and talk as to how well he was goin to do over on the Nuaces. I'n haerd hi them same things before 'bout other places we'd been goin' to. I begun to pack and gir ready jest as if I didn't care two bits 'bout movin' way off there and runnin' the risk of my life with them there treachersome Mexicans, who'd jestas lief cut your throat for a dol lar as not. Jilkins, the got ready, too. He hauled the wagon down in the river andswelled the tires (it had been pretty dry that year), and then he hauled it up over the rocks again and greased the wheels good, and fixed a place in the cover for the stovepipe to come out of, 'cause he said as how it was likely to be kinder cool at night, and we'd need the stove. He patched up the chicken coops good an' strong and tied 'em well on behind the wagon; and when the mornin' came that he'd 'pointed to leave he put a good 'lowance o' things in a big pack on old Rocky's back and hitched him on, to lead, so as the two other horses wouldn't be put to it so hard, 'cause he said there was some mighty strainin' hills 'fore we'd git cross the Divide. "He knocked down the bedstead and put it up careful in some old wool sackin' so as it wouldn't git scratched, and tied the heavy skillet and big pot (that I used when I wanted to save my cookin' stove) underneath the wagon with the water keg and two canteens full, 'cause 'twould be as much as 35 miles till we'd git to water; and then, when all was ready, the chickens caught, and the cat and dogs all in the notion of goin', I stepped out, with my best sun bonnet on and my plaid shawl, and I said, says I:

"'Jack Jilkins! Not a wheel shall turn! I's been leadin' this 'now-I'm-here-now-I'm-there kind o' life long enough, and I mean to stay right here by this drippin' spring, and I mean you to stay, too, and Si Henderson kin wait till he sees you ain't coming. You jest undo them things and pack 'em back to where they come from. You turn them fowl's loose and take that pack off old Rocky's back. I's not goin' to stir from here till Rock is too old to help haul. Drive your sheep back on this range, and don't you never let me make a fool of you like this again.'

"I shouldn't wonder, if you wanted anything done 'round this place, now, but that you'd have to ask me, and since that day Jack Jilkins has been very careful how he says what he is goin' to do without I give the word first. If he ever does, all I've got to do 'mind him o' that mornin' when he was a-gatherin' up the lines to drive off, and he had to spend the most part of the day in fixin' the things back and ein' sorry he'd said he'd go.

Bupply, Atlanta CityCouncil—Dear Sir: Since making our report on the Soque and Amicolola surveys, we have completed our investigations on North Peachtree creek as a source of water supply for the city of Atlanta, and respectfully submit the following:

REPORT.

Our surveys have been made with reference to a plan given to us by you for investigation, which is as follows:

1. Erect at Grier's bridge, on North Peachtree creek, a dam thirty-five feet high for a storage reception.

2. Erect below this on the same creek another and thus leave the water in the second reservoir immudited by freshets.

3. Construct a gravity conduit from this second reservoir to some point near the city where it will empty into a service reservoir after being filtered, and where a steam plant can be located for pumping the water into the city.

4. This plan contemplates the purchase, by the city, of the entire watershed of North Peachree creek above the reservoirs Nos. I and 2, so that contamination can be guarded against, and the entire watershed can be allowed to reclothe itself with forest, freeling the stream of the mud now washed into it from the cultivated fields, and making it as clear as it was when the original forest stood unmolested.

5. This plan, also recognizing the fact that estimate is made simply to show the greatest possible supply, and is not at all relevant to the plan proposed, as set forth in the beginning of his report.

Returning to the plan proposed in the outset, we find that a dam forty feet high at Grier's bridge, would be 646 feet long at the crost. The dam for clear water reservoir below will be about twice as long, though for the greater part of its length it will be less than twelve feet in height. Our surveys did not determine the capacity of this clear water reservoir, but it can be made sufficiently large for the service required. The overflow from the large reservoir would be located as shown in map. A pipe line to convey water from the clear water reservoir by gravity to the proposed service reservoir, near Piedmont exposition grounds, would be about six miles long, and in order to bring 19,090,000 gailons per day with a total grade of fourteen feet for the six miles, it would be necessary to use a pipe fortytwo inches in diameter. A forty-two inches in diameter, A forty-two inches wide and heavily banded with iron hoops, can be made for $16,000 per mile. Such an pipe laid two feet under ground and keept full of water will last for many years, and will resist all the pressure that would be brought upon it in the proposed location, as it is probable that no portion of it would be more than forty feet below the hydraulic grade line. We find that it will be practicable to locate a service reservoir close to the Richmond and Danville railroad, near the Piedmont exposition grounds.

We have spoken of the dams on North Peachtre as being thirty-five feet high, but if the water stands at this level the dams must be at least five feet higher, or forty feet. The following is an estimate and rolled, and to have a heart wall of groated masonry. We have also estimated upon rip-rapping both slopes of the dam with stone. The rip-rapping on the down-stream slope will not be necessary unless the clear-water reservoir below is constructed.

The unfavorable situation for a high dam at the point examined for a clear-water reservoir will make it cost about twice as much as the dam at Grier's bridge. Hence, we would say that constructing the forty-foot dam and clearing the ground for this lower reservoir would not cost less than $100,000. A dam twenty-five feet high at this point can be very cheaply constructed. However, as this clear water reservoir is not absolutely essential we will leave it out in our estimate. This will reduce the cost of the dan at Grier's bridge $3,000, which is the estimate for rip-rapping on down stream slope. With this change in the proposed plan, the following is an estimate of the cost of obtaining a 10,000,000 gallon supply of water from north Peachtree creek, and delivering it to the filters at a point near the Richmond and Danville railroad and Piodmont exposition grounds, where a service reservoir and pumpting station would be located.

(Exclusive of land rights of way and water THE HALL BROTHERS PRESENT A Of the North Peachtree Stream and Its have completed a report of their survey of a The Peachtree supply has been one to which Mayor Hillyer has been particularly partial, and the survey made was due mainly to his land all around the water source, and remove from it every building—every fence—and let it

This does not include any estimate for service reservoir, which would cost about $75,000 for a spacity of 30,000,000 gallons, or a three days' reservoir, which would cost about $75,000 for a capacity of 30,000,000 gallons, or a three days' supply.

Recarding the proposed plan we would say: The majority of cities in the world are either wholly or partially suppled by water that has been empounded. Nevertheless, there are many objections to such a supply, and it is generally preferable to obtain a supply from a flowing stream that carries a sufficient quantity during the entire year, provided such a stream does not present other and more serious objections.

At the upper end of the large reservoir proposed there would be annual accumulations of sand and mud, but these deposites would be materially less after the cultivation of the water-shed is stopped, and the land begins to grow up again in forest.

We hope that the above report, based as it is appon a hasty preliminary survey, may give you all the information that you desire at present. Very respectfully, Civil and Mining Engineers.

5. This plan, also recognizing the fact that North Peachtree will not furnish a supply of water that will be sufficient for the Atlanta of the future, contemplates the location of the service resercoir at a point where water from some other source can be brought into it either by gravity or by pumping, and thus increase the supply whenever the necessity arises for such increase. The watershed of this creek above Grier's bridge The watershed of this creek above Grier's bridge is about 16,000 acres, or twenty-five square miles. A very large proportion of this is cleared and in cultivation, consequently the water is very muddy, and would need to be filtered until a new forest could have time to grow.

If the city should adopt this stream as a source of supply, the watershed should be purchased, if it is practicable to do so. This remark applies to any other source from which water may be obtained, and in choosing a source, the practicability of such a purchase ought to be a very prominent consideration.

We find that a dam of Grier's bridge thirty-five Maximum Thermometer ... Minimum Thermometer.....

of such a purchase ought to be a very prominent consideration.

We find that a dam at Grier's bridge thirty-five feet high would dood about three brindred and seventy-five acres of land. Taking the average depth at fitteen feet this would give a poservoir with a capacity of 1842,00,000 galions.

We hand you berewith a map showing the form and size of this reservoir, drawn on a scale of 600 feet to the fieth. As the annual tainfall in this section is about forty-mine inches, and as fully thirty inches of this falls in the months from November 1st to May 1st, we can safely say that there will be plenty of water to fill a much larger reservoir than the one proposed. Thirty inches In six months makes an average daily rainfall of one-sixth (1-6) of an inch. About one-half of this is taken up by evaporation, or absorbed by the ATLANTA DISTRICT. November ist to May ist, we can safely say that there will be plenty of water to fill a much larger reservoir than the one proposed. Thirty inches in six months makes an average daily rainfall of one-sixth (1-6) of an inch. About one-half of this is taken up by evaporation, or absorbed by the soil; leaving the other one-half, one-twelfth (1-12) of an inch, to flow off in the stream. This, over an area of twenty-five (25) square miles, gives an average flow, including floods, for the six months named, of 35,009,000 gallons. Allowing 16,009,000 of this for city supply, and 2,000,000 gallons for evaporation and leakage from the reservoir, there would still be left a daily average of 23,000,000 gallons for evaporation and leakage from the reservoir flower would ing, making a grand total of 3,150,000,000 gallons that could be accumulated from November 1st to May ist. But as the proposed reservoir has a capacity of only 1,842,000,000 gallons, there would be a surplus of 1,288,000,000 gallons, there would be a surplus of 1,288,000,000 gallons that would run to waste through the overflow. However, the empounded water in the reservoir would be sufficient for a six months' supply of 10,000,000 gallons per day to the city from May ist to November 1st, even if the supply running into the reservoir during these months were no more than sufficient to compensate for leakage and evaporation. It will be seen, from the above statement, that the city could safely count on a 10,000,000 gallons upply from North Peachtree creek, if the proposed plan were adopted. It will also be seen that there is a surplus of winter water that could be empounded by making another reservoir or increasing the capacity of the one proposed. This surplus is 1,229,000,000 gallons, which is a tweive months' daily supply of 3,500,000 gallons, which, added to the above, would increase the total supply to 13,500,000 gallons per day for the whole year, provided the mineteen inches of rainfall from May 1st to November 1st, is sufficient to compensate for loss Spartanburg *Missing. ATLANTA'S A HUMMER.

WHAT THE INDUSTRIAL CENSUS WILL SHOW FOR HER.

n Interesting Talk with Mr. Bunker, the General Enumerator—Over $6,000,000 Invested in Atlanta's Factories.

The work of Mr. R. F. Bunker, special enumerator of manufactories in Atlanta for the eleventh consus, is beginning to show up some handsome results.

It is obvious from the figures he has accumulated that Atlanta is a great manufacturing

He has now been at work on the manufacturers' census several weeks, and has arrived at such figures in his work that show in a way that is not to be mistaken that the industrial census is going to give Atlanta a conspicuous report among those returned from the cities in the south.

The amount of money invested in manufac tories in the city, already enumerated by Mr. Bunker, is more than $6,000,000.

The number of laborers employed by the productive industries, counted up to date, is nore than 6,000.

More than $2,500,000 were paid out as wages last year on these industries that have been counted by Mr. Bunker.

These are significant figures. They will reach such a size before the man ufacturers' census is over as will tell a greater story of Atianta's growth than even the population census has done.

THE WORK IS PROGRESSING.
"I have not finished the census yet by any means," said Mr. Bunker to a representative of THE CONSTITUTION yesterday. "The work will require some time yet before it has been thoroughly accomplished, and I am determined to leave no stone unturned in searching for the industrial wealth of Atlanta. "I think I have counted all of the largest factories and productive industries in the city, but there are many smaller ones around the suburbs, and they will now claim my attention. It is remarkable to see how many big industries Atlanta has-the industries that really count for much in the upbuilding of the

"How many factories and industrial institutions have you enumerated up to date?" he was asked.

"I cannot tell exactly. I have not the definite figures by me just now. The number, however, is larger than any city the size of Atlanta in the south, I am satisfied." THEY DIDN'T KICK.

amy to kick against the questions?"
"Only two, and they didn't fully understand the questions, when they kicked. The questions they objected to were those bearing upon the capital invested, whether it was their own, or whether there was a mortgage over the factory.
"When I explained to the parties the real meaning of these questions, and showed that none of the answers would be made public, they gracefully acquiesced to the law governing the census on that point.

"Oh, no, the manufacturers have, as a rule, been very considerate of the tediousness of my task and have willingly lightened my work as far as they could. I shall finish the census as soon as possible and forward my report to the department at Washington." "Does your report up to date cover the electric plants and gas works in the city?"

"No. I have nothing to do with counting them. A special department has charge of them. Then you will see that the figures I have quoted you are all the more creditable to Atlanta, being only for factories and indus-tries that sell articles they produce to the outside world.

"My report will not cover the railroad shops, either, and they are great industries that will add much to the general report for Atlanta." A POPULATION OF LABORERS.

It is interesting to observe the large number of laborers in Atlanta.

"The census gives the city 67,000," says Mr. Bunker, "of which about 13,000 are heads of families, and according to the manufacturers' census, there are more than 6,000 of these laborers at work in the factories of Atlanta." "Odd Sa'e" of Tea, Dinner & Toilet Sets Which We Inaugurated,

-THE

To Continue One Week Longer

About three weeks ago we inaugurated what we called an "Odd Sale;" that is a sale for selling off all of our odd pieces of China, Dinner, Tes and Bedroom Sets, and general brica-brac. We had a great many odd pieces and we have been selling them at a nominal price.

This Sale will Continue One Week Longe During that time we will offer odd pieces at especially low prices, and if there is anything you want in the way of Tea, Dinner and Toilet Sets, you can get it at our store for almost a Sets, you can get it at our store for almost a song.

Next week our new goods will be coming into the market and we must clear the way for them. We have a considerable amount of odd pieces of China, Crockery and Glassware on hand, as well as a great many odd pieces in other lines. In fact, if you want any odd pieces in the line we carry, you can get it this week at a greatly reduced price. These goods that we are selling are strictly first-class. It is not old stock, because we carry none of that. In transportation frequently a dish or a bowl, a pitcher or some part of a set is broken, which renders it almost impossible for us to realize full price upon it. Recollect our "Odds." They are strictly first-class, both in design and finish. The sale will continue only one week longer. Call in tomorrow morning at 45 Peachtree street and see us.

JUSTIFIABLE HOMICIDE.

CORONER'S JURY RELEASES CHARLIE BLACKSTOCK.

The Inquest Yesterday Was Watched with Interest—The Dead Boy Was the Ag-gressor—The Investigation

Justifiable homicide. That is the verdict returned by the coro

ury in the killing of Marshall Coles by Charlie As the public is already aware the killing of Coles by Blackstock, both boys eleven years old, occurred Wednesday afternoon. Full particulars of the sensational tragedy were printed in yesterday's Constitution. Yesterday morning at 11 o'clock Dr J. C.

Avary, coroner, impaneled a jury and began an inquest upon the body of the dead negro The inquest was held at the home of the boy's father.

A great deal of interest was aroused by the killing, and when the inquest was begun there was a large crowd of negroes and white people collected at the house. The negroes were very much excited over the affair, and throughout the investigation were zealous in their efforts to bring forward all who had any knowledge at all of the tragedy.

Most of the witnessess examined were school children, who had been near by when the affray occurred.

After proceeding with the inquest for awhile at the dead boy's late home, the coroner's jury adjourned to the courtroom of Justic Landrum, on Decatur street. There the investigation was resumed and carried on until late in the

The courtroom was overflowing with spec tators, principally negroes and small boys, during the entire proceeding.

The evidence, in the main, corroborated Charlie Blackstock's story as already published, showing that he was justifiable in he did. It was brought out that after knocking Blackstock down the crowd of negro boys followed him across the street, when he got up and first attempted to get away. It was then that he took out his pocket-knife and cut Coles, who was on top of him when he fell, and who followed him closest when he tried to get away.

The negro boys present when the cutting occurred, who were examined, told about the ame story as the witnesses whose testing was in Blackstock's favor, except that they nearly all contended that in the difficulties which have taken place recently between the pupils of the Davis and Gray street schools, the white boys have been most often the

After being out a short time the coroner's jury returned a verdict of justifiable homicide, and little Blackstock was at once set at liberty.

Contagious Blood Diseases.

Contagious Blood Diseases.

The horror of blood diseases is the fact that they are contagious. Eczema, Saltrheum, Itch, and other skin diseases may be contracted by using the same towel, and thus it frequently happens a whole family becomes affected with the disease some member has contracted elsewhere. It is obviously the sacred duty of any one who suffers from a blood disease to rid their system of the impurity. This can be easily and quickly done by using Dr. Bull's Sarsaparilla, the only perfectly safe and complete blood purifier in the world. Its virture is exclusively its own, and no other medicine is exclusively its own, and no other medicine can compare with it in strength or efficacy. Any druggist will get it for you. Take no other. Observe its size and test its virtue.—Washington Observer.

AT THE THEATER.

Tonight the people of Atlanta will be given an opportunity of witnessing what is considered one of the finest productions on the road. It is that of Mr. Augustin Daly's famous play, "Under the Gaslight," as rendered by Mr. Arthur Rehan's my.

Daly's name is associated with all that is best in the different branches of stage amuse ments-in melodrama, in comedy and in recent Shakespearean productions upon an elaborate scale. The play, "Under the Gaslight," is con-sidered one of the best of all that bear his name; certainly it has proved one of the most popular.

To Mr. Arthur Rehan we are in "the provinces,"

—as the New York critics kindly characterize everything outside of New York-are indebted for what we know of Daly's play. And we are indebted to him for presenting these plays with a strength of cast and fidelity to the Daly method excelled by the home company at Daly's charming little play-house. The members of Mr. Rehan's companies have always been among the most capable ladies and gentlemen in the profession. He seems to have always succeeded in bringing together just the right people; and so, too, he has done this year, if the newspaper criticisms tell the truth. Among the leading members known to the At-lanta public is Mr. Will Owen, whose splendid work with Rhea made him many admirers here, as his personality has made friends of all who know him. He is but one, however, of a company of excellent people, this special mention of him being due to his wide acquaintance in Atlanta.

As a sensational play, "Under the Gaslight" ranks pre-eminently as the greatest jever writer. The possibilities for good acting and seeme display are unlimited, and it has been truly said that no play of the present day has such opportunities for dramatic work. Mr. Reban, seeing the pos sibilities for a perfect revival of this sensational play, concluded to drop for a season the comedies and enter the realms of melodrama. The scenic effects carried are most elaborate and startling; one scene alone is worth the ad-mission fee, that of the railroad, when an entire train of cars, nearly as long as a regular passenger express, dashes across the stage in less than ten seconds, about the time of a moving train running at the rate of forty miles an hour. The effect is most realistic and has never been seen on any stage before. The advance sales at Miller's indicate that "Under the Gaslight" will be greeted with a big house tonight and at the two performances to-morrow.

"Penalty." Monday, at matinee and night performance, "Penalty" will be produced by a company headed by Ella Wilson, the "young American star." Speaking of the play, a recent Lynchburg News said:

The play is very interesting in that it has a very realistic scene of an execution by electricity. An an ine and dynamo with conducting wires and an execution chair are on the stage in view of the audience. The engine starts, the dynamo begins to hum and electric light illuminates the scene. The executioner touches the fatal button and the flash is seen. Ed Gallagher, the Irish comedian, was well received on account of the good work he put into the part of Tim McCune, and his Irish dance fairly carried the upper part of the house. The cornet solo by Miss Mable Arnold, as boy Slick, was well received. The company is a strong and evenly balanced one.

The Gondollers Company.

The Gondollers Company.

The Gondollers Company is billed for next week.
The company, as the name indicates, will produce Gilbert and Sullivan's latest opera, the one in which Francis Wilson and his company made such a hit in New York and Philadelphia.

A "Busted Bubble."

"A Soap Bubble" isn't much. The comedy may have been a good one once, but the people who appeared in it yesterday succeeded in making it one of the poorest shows that have yet been seen here.

JUDGE SAMUEL LAWRENCE.

He Passed Away to Join the Majority Yesterday Morning.
The death of Judge Samuel Lawrence, which occurred at the residence of his son, Mr.
R. DeTreville Lawrence, in Marietta, yesterday, will be a grievous shock to people all over Georgia.

Judge Lawrence was a man well known in Atlanta and the state.

He spent much of his life in this city, where he has scores of warm friends to mourn his death.

Judge Lawrence was nearly seventy-five years old. He leaves a wife and several chilyears old. He leaves a wife and several children.

During his life Judge Lawrence was prominent in the fraternity or Masonry, and was at one time past grand master and past grand priest of the order.

As a writer, Judge Lawrence achieved a reputation as well deserved as it was enviable, and his books on Masonry will keep alive his memory forever in the ranks of the order.

The Atlanta lodges of Masons will probably go up to Marietta today to attend the funeral of their honored member. Dr. Love, of this city, has been asked to make an oration at the funeral, which will occur at 3:30 o'clock today, DR. C. W. NUTTING MAY BE A SENATOR.

An Old Atlantian Who is Rising in Cali-

Dr. C. W. Nutting, who went from Atlanta to Siskegan county, California, twelve years ago, is running on the democratic ticket for state senator of his district with a good prospect of election. Dr. Nutting is a son of Mr. J. F. Nutting, of this city, and has many friends here who will be glad to know of the fine stand he has taken in his new home.

Murat Halstead in Brooklyn.

From The New York Star. I have recently seen Murat Halstead at several social gatherings in Brocklyn. The field marshal has become one of the lions of the City of Churches and is really looked upon as a sort of Brooklyn and is really looked upon as a sort of Brooklyn fixture. Under these circumstances it seems rather peculiar that Halstead does not make Brooklyn his home. Though he is the editor of a paper in that city, is sought for and welcomed in its homes and its clubs, he still prefers to live at a hotel in this city. I don't know whether it is that a field marshal, used to the noise of battle, cannot bear the oppressive quietude of Brooklyn's streets, or whether it is that the opportunities of meeting western friends, who can be found only in New York, have prevented him from finding a home on the other side of the big bridge. But I am certain that he will receive an even heartier welcome in Brooklyn if he will only settle there than has been accorded him up to the present time.

The most generally useful medicine is Ayer's Pills. As a remedy for the various diseases of the stomach, liver, and bowels, these Pills have no equal. Their sugar-coating causes them not only to be easy and pleasant to take, but preserves their medicinal integrity in all climates and for any reasonable length of time. The best family medicine, Ayer's Pills are, also, unsurpassed for the use of travelers, soldiers, sailors, campers, and pioneers. In some of the most critical cases, when all other remedies have failed,

"In the summer of 1864 I was sent to the Annapolis hospital, suffering with chronic diarrhea. While there, I became so reduced in strength that I could not speak and was compelled to write everything I wanted to say. I was then having some 25 or 30 stools per day. The doctors ordered a medicine that I was satisfied would be of no benefit to me. I did not take it, but persuaded my nurse to get me some of Dr. Ayer's Pills. About two o'clock in the afternoon I took six of these pills, and by midnight began to feel better. In the morning the doctors came again, and after deciding that my symptoms were more favorable, gave that my symptoms were more favorable, gave me a different medicine, which I did not use, but took four more of the pills instead. The next day the dectors came to see me, and thought I was doing nicely, (and so did I). I then took one pill a day for a week. At the and that time, I considered myself cured and that Ayer's Pills had saved my life. I was then weak, but had no return of the disease, and gained in strength as fast as could be expected."—F. C. Luce, Late Lieut. 56th Regt. Mass. Vol. Infantry.

It seems that Mr. Cochran attacked Mr. Hinton with a monkey wrench, and dealt him a severe blow, which caused the blood to flow quite freely. Mr. Hinton succeeded in taking the wrench away from Mr. Cochran, and dealt him several blows with it, one of which was on the ack of the head, and it was thought his skull was broken. Dr. G. G. Griffin was sent for to attend Mr. Cochran, who reports him getting on very well. Mr. Hinton is not seriously hurt."

-Savannah Daily Times: "The present cool snap is not improving the chances of the rice planters for making much money out of their crops this year. It will tend to retard ripening and otherwise assist in increasing their losses. If it winds up the long spell of rainy weather though, it will be readily forgiven for the damage it does. The planters are getting more and more despondent as each day passes with the old tale of rain again, and more rain to come. Some of them are so blue that they very much overestimate their loss, several this morning putting it at fully 50 per cent. Others hold, and probably correctly, that this is too high, and that 25 or 30 per cent is sufficiently large to cover everything." VAN HOUTEN'S COCOA-The original, most

The Day on the Floor of the New York Stock Exchange.

NEW YORK, October 2.—The stock market

today has been duller and more stagnant than on any day since before the monetary stringency and as far as the course of prices is an indication both as far as the course of prices is an indication both sides are again waiting for developments with the usual accompaniement of duliness and bear attacks upon unprotected spots in the list. The bears were rather disappointed at the failure of the governors of the Bank of England to raise its minimum rate of discount and rates for starlier. minimum rate of discount, and rates for sterling exchange remained stationary. At the same time the lack of backbone to the recent advances was very disgusting to the bull?, although confidence in the future is by no means lacking, the opinion is generally expressed that we have not yet begun to feel the real effect of the heavy treasury disbursements the past month, and when that money really seeks investment a large proportion of it niust go into railroad stocks and bonds and a sub-stantial rise is inevitable. Railroad stocks today, however, were very uninteresting, there being apparently no influential interest at work that apparently no influence and impression upon prices in either direction, and fluctuations were confined to the smallest fractions. Sugar Refineries was two points off in the forenoon on rumors that dividends would not be paid on account of law suits. dends would not be paid of account of law sails. The Grangers were attacked, Burlington and Rock Island losing 1½. The close was dull and heavy at about the lowest of the day. Final prices show a majority of losses. Hubbard, Price & Co.'s Circular.

NEW YORK, October 2—[Special] — Manchester spinners are seeking to secure the better grades of the last crop remaining unsold in Liverpool, paying full prices without question, and in addition taking up the tenders upon the immediate position to obtain the best of this season's cotton. This legitimate demand gives decided strength to the market abroad, while at home a general disposition to cover before the publication of the burean report gives our market a quiet and firm tone. The storm passes slowly off the cotton belt, but still lingers along the Atlantic coast, and undoubtedly has injured the crop. Upon the question of the extent hinges the course of the market. American spinners have been free buyers in our market of staple cotton today, and the tenders upon October have been absorbed by local houses with the intention of selecting the better grades. The lower grades will undoubtedly be reduced upon the next revision day.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Features of the Speculative Movement in Grain and Provisions.
CHICAGO, October 2—Wheat was rather dull outside orders were few and there was only a light local business transacted. There was nothing enocal business transacted. There was nothing encouraging in any of the outside news, and the market was governed mainly by local speculators. The opening was %@%c higher than yesterday's closing, immediately eased off %c, recovered again and prices then dropped %c, held steady and closed about the same as yesterday. Corn was quiet with trading confined mainly to professional operators. The first trades were at the advance orders whith a first fease were at
